JAIL FARMER IN TWO SLAYINGS

Police at Marion Say Father of 7 Confesses Killing Employer and Wife.

BULLETIN

MARION—(AP)—H. L. Roush, 48-year-old farm hand, pleaded guilty today at arraignment on a first degree murder charge in the slaying of Homer T. Myers, elderly stock raiser, killed late Saturday with his wife in their farm home. Roush was bound over to the grand jury without bond.

(By Associated Press)

MARION, O. — A 48-year-old father of seven children was held in the Marion county jail today after, Prosecutor Paul D. Michel said, he confessed that he beat and shot to death Mr. and Mrs. Homer T. Myers, an elderly and prominent farm couple for whom he worked.

Michel, saying he would file first degree murder charges against the man, H. L. Roush, today, blamed the slaying on a note for $1,400 that Myers held against his employe.

The bodies of Myers, who was 65, and his wife, 67, were found early yesterday in their flaming home six miles south of here.

Myers, a noted breeder of pure-blooded livestock, was shot in the right temple and was found in his bedroom. Mrs. Myers, shot once and her head battered, was in the dining room.

Took Family to Movie.

Roush confessed, Michel related, that he took his wife and children to Marion Saturday night to attend a movie. Leaving them, he returned to the Myers farm and walked into the house.

"I've come to pay you that money," he told Myers.

The farmer went into his bedroom, obtained the note, wrote "Paid in Full" across it and handed it to Roush. As he did so Roush shot him with a revolver, Michel said.

Mrs. Myers screamed and Roush turned his weapon on her, the prosecutor continued. He fired several times but only one shot took effect. Roush walked into the kitchen, picked up a small rifle, returned and clubbed the

Wedding Unites Royal Families Crushed By War

POTSDAM, Germany — (U.P.) — Prince Louis Gerdinand, 31, and Prince Louis Ferdinand, 31, and Grand Duchess Kira, 29, of the once great and sovereign houses of Hohenzollern and Romanoff, were married today.

There were 100 royal guests, relatives and close friends present. If the World war had not ended the reigns of the Hohenzollerns in Germany and the Romanoffs in Russia, celebrations would have been held in cities and villages from Hamburg to Vladivostock, involving 200,000,000 persons. Today the union of the two houses meant nothing at all and was scarcely noticed.

The ceremonies were simple Two officials of the Potsdam registry office went to Cecilienhof, the former crown prince's palace three miles from town, to perform a perfunctory ceremony to marry his eldest son and the grand duchess who is the daughter of the Russan pretender.

The crown prince, a leading figure of the World war, and Grand Duke, the bride's father, were the only witnesses.

Asks Commons O.K. On Anglo-Italian Pact

Chamberlain In Plea to Remove One of Europe's 'Danger Spots' As Peace Aid.

(By International News Service)

LONDON—Co-operation of the British parliament in removing one of the "danger spots" in Europe was asked by Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain today in requesting approval of the Anglo-Italian agreement.

Conclusion of the agreement, he told the house of commons, has already resulted in clearing away "the clouds of mistrust and suspicion."

Aims for Confidence.

"The purpose of the government's foreign policy," the premier said, "is not only to establish peace but to restore general confidence that peace can and will be maintained.

"Without this confidence no progress is possible in international affairs. We can obtain confidence only if we succeed in removing grievances, differences and suspicion which might, if unchecked, lead to war.

"That task cannot be accomplished in a moment or all at once. But if we can succeed in eliminating the danger spots one by one we may in time find ourselves in a position to arrive at the goal at which we are aiming.

"Signing of the agreement between the government of Italy and his majesty's government already has effected a radical change in relations between the two countries.

"The clouds of mistrust and suspicion have been cleared away. The two peoples now regard one another with a determination to promote mutual friendship instead of hostility."

During the discussions which preceded the agreement, Chamberlain revealed, Italian Foreign Minister Galeazzo Ciano promised that Italy would abstain from creating difficulties or embarrassments for Britain in Palestine.

In return, British Ambassador Lord Perth assured Italy Britain would protect and preserve legitimate Italian interests in Palestine.

Store Windows Dressed in Styles of "Good Old Days"

Unusual Collections of Antiques in Downtown Shops Keep Step With Pioneer Celebration.

EDITOR'S NOTE—The following story is by Helen Allyn, member of the Cleveland Press staff, who is spending a week on The News-Journal, through an exchange arrangement by which Jane Williams of The News-Journal is taking Miss Allyn's place on the Press.

By HELEN ALLYN

A six-year-old lad looked at an old-fashioned bustle in a Main street window today and asked, "Mother, what's that funny-looking dress?"

And a 60-year-old woman admiring an antique plate, said, "My grandmother used to have dishes just like that. I wonder what happened to them?"

These were favorite comments before all the windows in town where time had been turned back 100 years or more to provide an atmosphere in keeping with the arrival of the Northwest Territory caravan today.

Modern Goods In Background.

From furniture stores to restaurants, windows have substituted everything from bustles to old-fashioned clocks for strictly 1938 merchandise.

Remember hearing about the bed warmers grandmother used to fill with hot coals out of the stove? There's one in the display of the Quality Furniture company window that belongs to Mrs. Warren Fort. In the same window, called "A Parlor of Yesterday"

CLEAN-UP ON

City Tackles Annual Job of Hauling Away Rubbish.

Mansfield's spring clean-up campaign swung into high gear today as a crew of city workmen and three trucks moved into the first and sixth wards.

At noon Service-Safety Director Tracy C. Styert said that more than 20 tons of rubbish had been hauled away from the curbs and at the present pace, some changes in schedule might be made before the end of the week.

He urged all residents to have their rubbish placed in containers on the curb where it will be accessible on the days designated.

The clean-up crew will continue in the first and sixth wards tomorrow and Wednesday, before moving into the fourth and fifth wards the last three days of the week. The present schedule calls for the crew to cover the second and third wards next Monday and Tuesday.

SANDUSKY—(INS)—Armed with a sawed-off shotgun and wearing a long jute bag over his head as a mask, a bandit, believed to be the one active in the vicinity of Fostoria in recent weeks, today held up Pete Palmiston, gasoline station attendant, and took $43 from the cash register.

WORLD TURNS EYES ON ROME

Hitler Departs for Meeting With Duce; Czech Demands Heighten Tension.

(By Associated Press)

The world waited anxiously today for the full protent of the impending Hitler-Mussolini rendezvous in Rome while tension in Central Europe, of prime concern to both dictators, was heightened by a demand for a plebiscite among Czechslovakia's restive German minority.

Berlin turned out for a cheering, flag-waving farewell to Reichsführer Hitler and his imposing entourage—the very size and composition of which foreshadowed the possibility of important adjustments in the Rome-Berlin axis when he and Premier Mussolini get together.

No Sensations, Claim.

However, before Hitler's afternoon departure by special train, the German public was cautioned not to expect sensational announcements.

Italian troop trains rolled into Rome for a majestic reception to the reichschancellor when he arrives tomorrow for a week in Italy.

Considerable troubled water has passed under Europe's diplomatic bridges since Mussolini visited Hitler in Germany last fall. These developments well may determine the nature of future Italian-German collaboration:

1. Hitler's absorption of Austria, putting German troops at Italy's backdoor, Brenner pass.

2. Italian-British repproachment and negotiations for similar friendship between Italy and France.

3. The military understanding reached last week by Britain and France.

4. The upward surge of Nazism among Czechoslovakia's 3,500,000 Sudeten Germans.

The latter was topped yesterday by the Sudeten fuehrer, Konrad Henlein, with a demand that the Sudetens be permitted to vote on how they wish to be governed. A week ago Henlein demanded autonomy in the Nazi style for them and a revision of Czechoslovak foreign policy.

In a May day speech, Henlein called for the plebiscite and said his week-old demands were "not the maximum but the minimum of what is necessary to solve our national problems."

Von Cramm, Tennis Ace, To Face Nazi Court On Morals Charge.

BERLIN — (INS) — Baron Gottfried Von Cramm, the German tennis ace, will go on trial in the famous Moabit criminal court on a morals charge May 14, authorities announced today. The Davis cup player is well known in tennis circles from coast to coast in the United States.

'America' To Be Laid To Rest Tomorrow In Favorite White

Impersonal hands dressed "Miss America" for her burial today—and they dressed her in white.

For "Miss America", kindly old colored lady, who died at her Blymyer avenue home Saturday, had asked that it be that way.

"Miss America" — who was America Spencer, although few people called her that—spent some 40 years of her life dressing people in white—but for a much happier occasion than the one for which her body was being prepared today.

Years ago, as a professional beauty expert—perhaps the first one in Mansfield, she was summoned to get the brides of the town's "quality families" ready for their weddings.

Of course, they wore white. And that was why "Miss America" wanted to be buried in white—because so many of "her" brides had worn it.

The story of her activities along that line is admirably told by Louis Bromfield, in his novel, "The Farm."

"When America arrived in the house, life became a little more exciting", Bromfield wrote, "and when there was a wedding of importance, the bride was given into

JURY CONVENES ON 'SHAKEDOWN'

Seven Sales Tax Employes 1st Witnesses Called in Duffy's Probe of 'Assessment.'

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS — Twenty-three state employes were called to testify today as a special grand jury opened an inquiry into charges that civil service workers were being solicited for Democratic campaign contributions.

First witnesses included seven sales tax division workers and three from the unemployment compensation division. Testimony, being heard in the office of Atty. Gen. Herbert S. Duffy, was secret.

Thirteen other witnesses were summoned to appear during the afternoon. They included five Securities Division workers, five from the industrial commission and one each from the civil service, gasoline tax and Industrial Relations divisions.

Assistant Atty. Gen. Will P. Stephenson, who is directing the investigation, said there was no indication as to how long it would continue.

The jury was called last week after seven employes of the state tax commision refused to answer questions of assistant attorneys general relative to reports that the classified workers were being assessed 5 per cent of their annual salaries to help finance the third-term campaign of Gov. Martin L. Davey.

Declaring that "millions of dollars" in federal funds were involved, Duffy asked U. S. Atty. Gen. Homer S. Cummings to send investigators into the state to aid the sift. Cummings replied that any information relating to U. S. funds should be referred to U. S. district attorneys in Ohio.

YANKS RESCUED

Seven Americans Saved When British Ship Runs Aground.

HONG KONG — (AP) — Seven American passengers from the British steamer Thurland Castle were among the survivors brought to Kong Kong today after the 6,372-ton vessel ran aground last night.

A destroyer rescued the passengers, who said the Thurland Castle's hold was full of water and firmly aground, with the bow high.

TRAFFIC KILLS TWO NEAR CITY

Willard Man Killed Near Monroeville; Injuries Fatal to Galion Man.

The Mansfield area contributed two traffic deaths to six reported throughout the state over the week-end, boosting the Ohio total to eight.

Killed near here as the result of auto accidents were Herman Zoll, 27, of Willard, and John S. Girton, 55, of Galion.

Girton died early today at Good Samaritan hospital in Galion as the result of injuries suffered when his car ran into a ditch one and a half miles north of Crestline on route 30-N at about 10 a. m. Sunday, and Zoll died of injuries suffered when the car in which he was riding struck a moving freight train at a crossing near Monroeville, Saturday evening.

Girton was on his way to Bucy-

OUSTER READY

Styert Acts to Have Copper Removed From Police Force.

Service-Safety Director Tracy C. Styert today had prepared a formal ouster that would remove Patrolman Harry Copper from the Mansfield police department.

Styert said that not only was the city prepared to show reason why Copper, who is "resting" on a farm in Jackson county, should be permanently dismissed from the force, but revealed that the patrolman's pay had been held up by the civil service commission after he had refused to sign Copper's pay voucher.

Styert said that formal dismissal charges had been drafted and would be served on the patrolman "just as soon as a guardian is appointed or Copper returns from his 60-day leave." Probate Judge C. J. Anderson has held that Copper is mentally ill.

Caravan Heads Parade, Climax To Mansfield Celebration; Ex-Gov. White Speaks at Ceremonies at Park.

STAGE PAGEANT TONIGHT

Thousands of residents of Richland and surrounding counties thronged Mansfield today as the city prepared to climax its two-day observance of the 150th anniversary of the birth of the Northwest Territory.

Clear skies and temperature in the 70's helped to make a perfect setting for one of the most impressive and largest celebrations Mansfield has planned in years.

With a historical parade and afternoon and evening programs on today's schedule, thousands were expected to crowd the city to join in a tribute to the sturdy pioneers who braved the dangers of the wilderness 150 years ago to build homes in the mid-west and found the area which now includes Ohio.

Following a parade through the city this afternoon, former Gov. George White of Marietta, one of the originators of the Northwest Territory celebration idea, will be the principal speaker at ceremonies at the west side of Central park.

Others who are scheduled to speak are E. J Mildren, state director of the celebration commission; W. M. Gilkison, one of the city's oldest residents; Ralph Lutz, Richland county representative to the general assembly; Mayor Claude M. Hunter and W. L. Miller, superintendent of schools and honorary chairman of the county celebration committee.

City In Holiday Attire.

The city was be-decked today in banners of many colors and store windows in the downtown area showed some of the most complete historical collections ever displayed in Mansfield.

Flags and banners waved over Park avenue west, North Main street, West Fourth street and North Mulberry street, marking the route of the parade this afternoon.

1,500 Gather at Historic Blockhouse to Honor Pioneers

By VIRGIL A. STANFIELD

The old blockhouse, the major remaining landmark of pioneer Mansfield, was the scene yesterday afternoon of the city's first observance of the sesqui-centennial of the Northwest Territory as four speakers paid tribute to Johnny Appleseed and the founders of Richland county.

With the weather ideal for an outdoor program, nearly 1,500 persons attended the two-hour ceremonies in South park which were in charge of the city's Boy Scouts.

Terming the opening of the Northwest territory 150 years ago as the half-way mark in the nation's progress, E. J. Wesson, Mansfield, an authority on Ohio history, told of the hardships which befell the early frontiersmen as they pushed westward in the search of land and new freedom

"It was about 150 years after the colonies were settled on the Atlantic coast that the dissatisfied pioneers started their long journey westward to open up the Northwest territory, the event that we are observing now," Wesson said.

Relating stories of the early history of Mansfield, Wesson told of

Battle For Democracy Never Over, Territory Authority Says

By ROBERT E. ROGERS

The spirit of the pioneers still has its place, for the battle of democracy is never over, Dr. Robert E. Brown, professor of theology at Oberlin college and an authority on the Northwest Territory, told members of the Community Christian Youth Forum last night at the First Presbyterian church in their observance of the founding of the territory.

Dr. Brown paid tribute to three hardy pioneers whom he said were instrumental in building the territory which he termed the "heart of America."

He said that Manasseh Cutler, Rufus Putman and Johnny Appleseed, did more in the shaping of the early nation than any other three men in American history.

"We can't think of Ohio without thinking of the three men," Dr. Brown said. "And we shall always be indebted to these men for what they have given us."

He characterized Robert La Salle, who discovered the Mississippi river and the country that was later to become the Northwest territory, as "second to none in the field of exploration."

He reviewed the history of the territory from the time of its discovery up to the passage of the

'AMERICA' TO BE BURIED IN WHITE

the hands of Miss America to be shampooed and manicured.

"It was Miss America who helped the bride into her wedding dress, pinning it in here, letting it out there, standing off to survey the product of her skill, flashing her wide grin of ebony and gold while she made clucking sounds of admiration."

Bromfield wrote these words about "Miss America" as he remembered her in the days of plenty—before she had to apply for help at the city relief office and before the "ladies of quality" whom she served so many years, died or moved away.

"No girl was respectably married," the novelist concluded, "without the expert aid of Miss America."

"Many was the time, after grooming the bride, that she went with her in the cab to church to be on hand at the last minute to straighten out a fold of her veil or fix her curl.

"She was a beauty specialist long before the days of Elizabeth Arden and Helena Rubenstein. Her creams and lotions were concocted from herbs and simples according to secret formulas which could not have been dragged from her by wild horses."

Even when Bromfield knew "Miss America" years ago, he said no one had any idea of her age. Before she died, she was supposed to have put her age at near 77. At any rate, she was believed to have been born about the time of the Civil war, coming to Mansfield more than 50 years ago.

She had lived in the little cottage at 151 Blymyer avenue for the past 46 years, where her body will rest until tomorrow's funeral services at the Glad Tidings tabernacle.

Rev. J. A. Wilkerson, pastor of the tabernacle, will preach the funeral sermon at 2 p. m. tomorrow with burial following in Mansfield cemetery.

Funeral arrangements were made by an adopted daughter, Mrs. Marian Frances Whitfield of Cleveland. Her other survivors are three great-grandchildren who lived with her, Geneva and Vivian Hunt and Betty Wright; one great grandchild, Jerry Wright; and the children of Mrs. Whitfield, Jackie and David.

woman to death, the prosecutor quoted the farm hand as admitting.

Then, Michel went on, Roush splashed gasoline in the kitchen, dining room and parlor and set it afire before he hurried from the scene and went directly to the Scioto river, into which he hurled his revolver.

Youths See Blaze.

Two youths, Bob Bensley, 20, of Ashley, and Harry Wiley, 19, of Delaware, passed the home shortly after the fire started and noticed the blaze. Failing to arouse anyone, they smashed down the front door and in the glow of the flames discovered the bodies.

Roush hurried to Marion after throwing his gun into the river, Michel said, met his family at the theater, returned home and helped fight the then smoldering fire.

Michel said the admission was hastened when he and other officers told Roush they planned to use "a lie detector." This had followed Roush's story that he went to the theater Saturday night but was unable to remember the nature of the picture.

MOTHER SAVES TWO CHILDREN

But Year-Old Baby Perishes In Blazing Michigan Home.

SOUTH LYON, Mich.—(INS)—A year-old baby girl was burned to death today as her mother saved two other children from flames that destroyed their home.

Marilyn Campbell died in her crib while her mother rescued Jimmy, three, and an infant son. Witnesses said the fire was started by Jimmy, who was playing with matches.

The father, Frederick, was at work at a Detroit power company at the time of the fire.

STRIKE CLOSES AKRON BAKERIES

Bakers Join Drivers in Protest Over Annual Vacations.

AKRON—(AP)—A strike of bakery drivers and sympathetic absence of bakers closed activity of virtually every baker in Akron today but both unions and employers expected early settlement.

There were no fresh baked goods today because the bakers and inside employes did not report for work Sunday noon for the usual Monday production. Many stores and restaurants had laid in supplies for today and tomorrow.

Demand for two weeks vacation instead of one week caused the strike.

ordinance of 1787, and told of the hardships and experiences of the three famous men whose names were to go down in history.

"For the first 100 years, Ohio was a part of the province of New France," he said. "After the French and Indian wars of 1759, in which the present site of Mansfield was a part of the battleground, the capture of Quebec took place by the British and Ohio remained under English rule until 1783."

At the fellowship forum, which preceded the public meeting, Charles Atwell was re-elected chairman of the group, Henry Sanford, vice chairman, Ruth Husung, secretary, and Vivian Miller, treasurer. The meeting was the last for the forum until September.

PLEAD INNOCENT

3 Chiropractors, Psychologist to Be Tried May 9.

Arraigned in common pleas court Saturday on charges of illegal advertising, three Mansfield chiropractors and a fourth practitioner listed as a "psychologist" pleaded innocent and were released under $100 bond each. Date for their trials was set for May 9 and they were allowed until Tuesday to decide whether they want trial by jury.

The affidavits, filed by Laurence A. Dietrich, investigator for the state medical board, named Mrs. Flo A. Morris, 78 Park avenue west; Glenn G. Armold, 77 West Fourth street; Benjamin L. Sites, 190 West Fourth street, and David E. Jones, 8 East Fourth street.

Mrs. Morris, Armold and Sites are accused of advertising themselves as engaged in the practice of medicine before obtaining certificates from the state medical board.

Jones, who is listed as a "psychologist," is charged with using the words "healer" and "suggestive therapeutics" in a diploma "to induce the belief he is engaged in medical practice."

TALKS TONIGHT

Davey to Reveal Date for Special Relief Session.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Gov. Martin L. Davey said today that he would announce in a radio speech tonight (7:15) the date on which he would call the legislature into a special session on relief needs.

The address, to be broadcast over an Ohio hookup, will be one of a series the governor inaugurated shortly after a senate investigating committee of the last special session hurled charges of graft at several state agencies.

The legislative call was prompted by officials of various Ohio cities who told the governor they faced a serious shortage of funds and urged that he hurry a new poor aid program.

Mayor Harold H. Burton of Cleveland said Saturday that his city's funds were depleted and its entire emergency relief staff laid off.

SHE COMBS THE WORLD FOR PICTURES THAT THRILL

What Margaret Bourke-White, famous photographer, said when Ralph Martin asked if she found a difference in cigarettes

"Cigarettes seem pretty much alike to me. Do you find some difference between Camels and the others, Miss Bourke-White?"

"I've found that Camels are very, very different, Mr. Martin—not just in one way, but in a lot of ways. For example, my nerves must be just as trustworthy as a steeple jack's. Camels don't jangle my nerves. They taste extra-mild and delicate too. Camels never leave an unpleasant after-taste, and they're so gentle to the throat. In fact, Camels agree with me in every way! I think that's what counts most—how your cigarette agrees with you!"

STEEL MILLS, lumber camps, dams, skyscrapers, coal mines, subways (as above)—appeal to Margaret Bourke-White. She has gone all over the United States, into far countries. And her photographs are now internationally famous for their vigor and interest. They're different! And that's the same remark that Miss Bourke-White made about Camels to Ralph Martin at the New York World's Fair grounds (right).

MISS BOURKE-WHITE, like most modern women, likes dancing and the theatre. "And," she says, "I have Camels with me. Camels make a big difference in smoking."

ONE SMOKER TELLS ANOTHER "CAMELS AGREE WITH ME!"

Leading growers tell their preference in cigarettes—it's Camel!

"We smoke Camels because we know tobacco," tobacco planters say

"I've been planting tobacco for twenty years," says Harry C. King. "Camel bought the choice lots of my last crop—paid more for my best tobacco. So I know they use finer, more expensive tobaccos in Camels—a mighty good reason why my cigarette is Camel."

"I'm a tobacco planter," says Vertner Hatton, who has grown tobacco 25 years. "The Camel people pay more for our better tobaccos. Last crop they took my finest grades. I smoke Camels—I know no substitute for expensive tobaccos. Most planters favor Camels."

"It's a fact Camel uses costlier tobaccos," says Floyd Smither, who knows tobacco from the ground up. "Last year I grew a handsome crop. Camel bought up my best leaf tobacco. I smoke Camels—so do most planters hereabouts. I know the quality tobacco in them."

MONDAY, MAY 2, 1938.

Looking Back To Look Forward.

MANSFIELD is today centering interest on commemoration of the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the opening of the Northwest territory—an event that paved the way for development of the states of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin and a part of Minnesota.

Presence in Mansfield of the caravan of "pioneers," with this afternoon's parade and this evening's pageant, should serve to indelibly stamp this occasion, and its significance, on the minds of thousands of residents of this city and vicinity.

Herein may be seen a symbolism of those early days when there was no Mansfield and no Ohio, as contrasted with present-day cities and states of this rich and prosperous area.

When it is considered that the first child born in Mansfield would have needed to pass only the age of fifty years to have overlapped on the lifetime of present residents above eighty, the brief interval between Indian trails and modern highways can be better realized.

Knowledge gained by study of the past has its chief value in the inspiration provided by better understanding of methods employed in the founding and development of what has become a great nation, and also in learning of past mistakes, so that these can be avoided in the future.

Even in the requirement for constant adaptation to changing conditions, problems of today are no more difficult than those of the past were thought to be by each generation that faced them.

Nor should there be discouragement in temporary conditions that impede more rapid progress. In spite of the setbacks of wars, depressions and calamities in many forms, America's course has been steadily forward—handicapped only by the human weaknesses which it must remain for future generations to gradually lessen and eventually eradicate.

Having in mind that 150 years covers the period of national development in the United States, while Rome is this year celebrating the 2691st anniversary of its founding, the wonder is that we have come so far in such a short time, rather than that there are still so many things to be done.

Industrial Peace-Seeker.

MYRON C. TAYLOR, who retired as chairman of the United States Steel corporation on April 5, plans to devote much of his new leisure to the study and promotion of industrial peace and the solution of other management problems.

Mr. Taylor says he has become interested in this task because of experiences of the last few years. He has seen government, business and labor working at cross purposes occasionally and warring among themselves, when the times and situations have needed the closest understanding and co-operation. He believes that a solution is essential and can be found. He intends to do what he can to find it. He is encouraged in this view by the peaceful relations which the United States Steel Corporation has enjoyed with labor since it entered into a contract with the S. W. O. C. in 1937.

This type of public service may be of great value. It sets an example which, if widely followed by other leaders, would go far toward better understanding between capital and labor.

Tax-Exempt Bonds.

REMOVAL of tax exemptions of public bonds is being urged mainly as a matter of social justice. The president speaks of "a vast reservoir of tax-exempt securities in the hands of a very few persons who equitably should not be relieved of taxes on their income."

The reform also seems desirable from the viewpoint of fiscal policy, because this tax-exempt reservoir deprives federal and state treasuries of money they need for public purposes.

But there is also a sound business reason for abolishing the exemptions. As wealthy citizens more and more have tended to "lock up their funds in tax-exempt securities," they have thereby lessened the quantity of funds available for direct investment purposes. Money has gone into bonds instead of going into business. Perhaps when the income from exempted bonds is taxed like ordinary income, a great deal of idle wealth will be put to productive use in private enterprise.

There are delicate problems involved, such as the lowered market value of bonds when they are taxed, the effect on insurance companies and other fiduciary institutions and their clients. There will be difficulties during the period of readjustment, but in the long run, the general situation should be improved.

Two Countries Shake Hands.

SIGNING of a border pact and the removal of barbed wire entanglements and machine-gun emplacements between two countries in Europe certainly is news. Yugoslavia and Bulgaria are the two nations that have decided they can live side by side without armed protection against each other.

Relations between the two have been improving steadily. Furthermore, they find the cost of maintaining military borders too high for them.

The agreement may not be so much a matter of love as of expediency, with political ramifications in other European areas hard to analyze at the present time. Even so, it is an inspiring event.

According to Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, "The greatest enemy to successful democracy is ignorance"—which somehow seems to weaken the "equality" idea.

Something they can never understand in authoritarian countries: American soap-boxers lambasting the government.

If more attention were paid to the child in the high chair there would be less need for the electric chair.

It remained for "advancing civilization" to introduce poison gas into warfare.

The majority of radio jokes are hardly worth trying to remember again.

Keeping Step

—By LESLIE EICHEL

SOMEHOW, sometime in the future there will be partial debt repudiation. Oh, in a legal manner—but repudiation all the same.

Money will be made worth less, in order to pay off bonds.

That is the dismal view now of many holders of government securities—federal and state and municipal.

Economic institutions on which many investors depend are adding to this view.

For example, the Alexander Hamilton Institute says in a bulletin:

"President's fiscal program indicates federal spending and lending of $11,375,000,000 in coming year. Prospective deficit of $5,456,000,000 will be larger than in any year of the depression. Effect of the program will be to prolong the current slump by preventing needed readjustments. Similar program at the 1929 collapse accompanied by three-year decline in business."

* * *

"NEEDED READJUSTMENTS"

What is meant by "needed readjustments"?

The Alexander Hamilton Institute bulletin answers:

"The economic structure today is featured by a lack of balance similar to that which developed after 1929 and recovery must wait on the restoration of equilibrium which at the present time is upset by such factors as excessive wage rates and burdensome debts. It is obvious, the institute believes, that spending and lending by the government will serve to perpetuate rather than to correct such maladjustments."

Labor, of course, will resent that. But, sometimes, lower wages will buy more than higher wages. Henry Ford says that commodity prices are too high and will find their proper level. If so, living will be easier, and business may gain acceleration. The present program, however, is all to the contrary of that—and that is true in every nation.

* * *

HOW MUCH?

How much debt can we stand in the United States until repudiation of some of it will become necessary?

Well, the federal state and local debt may total 70 billion dollars at the end of the next fiscal year, the Alexander Hamilton Institute estimates.

"This will represent more than 20 per cent of the national wealth."

For a private corporation to have debt outstanding to the amount of 20 per cent of its resources would not be serious. But when governments are involved, their credits fail and their monetary units cease to purchase in sufficient value.

Debt repudiation of corporations, via bankruptcy, is far more common than government repudiation. Business men take that as a matter of course. Debt failure by a nation, however, involves vastly more, and affects every citizen of the nation, as well as the entire complex economic world.

* * *

TOO MUCH GOLD?

In the meantime, interchange of trade among nations continues to lag. That is the most menacing situation in the world economic situation. Nations seem to be unable to surmount the economic barriers they so foolishly raised in "self defense."

We read this headline in the Wall Street Journal:

"Shrinkage of U. S. import trade being reflected in export business; purchasing power of other nations dwindles with chief market here dull."

The old adage is working: King Midas prayed that everything he touched would turn to gold. It did—and he was on the verge of starvation when some kind midi saved him from the curse he had inadvertently wished on himself. The United States has drained the world of more than half of its gold supply—and starves.

If the United States would send its gold abroad in the purchase of goods, then foreign nations would be able to buy our goods. Gold is not wealth, but is a symbol of exchange of goods for goods. Trade is wealth.

Trees Go as Autos Demand Space

—By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON—If the people of the United States realized how their capital city is being hashed up to make more room for automobiles to circulate there would be a revolution.

No. At a second thought the hashery probably would be only hastened, because so large a proportion of Americans are auto owners that an overwhelming majority presumably would be sympathetic toward any program to facilitate operation of their Washington brethren's flivvers.

The sacrifice of the city's beauty OUGHT to breed a revolution, however.

* * *

ONCE—GREAT TREES

When I first saw our capital, about 25 years ago, it perhaps was the loveliest of the world's sizable municipalities.

Its trees were wonderful. Giant elms, maples and oaks lined all its streets, even in most of the business section. They were a century or more old—an urban paradise, the creation of three or four generations.

Approximately a dozen years back this forest began to be offensive to autoists. Ever since then they have been whittling away at it.

* * *

CUTTING THE TREES

Of course the trees grew along curb lines. Between the rows was (then) a reasonable amount of room for vehicular traffic. On each side was a broad footway for that now nearly extinct species, the pedestrian.

With the spread of the automotive epidemic there began to be a demand for a trimming off of the edges of these footways, to make additional space in the middle for the navigation of autos. True, it was at the pedestrians' expense—but who, today, cares a hoot for pedestrian rights?

Never mind the pedestrian!—he's a short-lived chap, anyway.

But the amputation of thousands of century-or-more-old trees presented itself as an urgent necessity, to furnish increased vehicular space between the lines of them.

* * *

ONE AFTER ANOTHER

District of Columbia authority went to work on the job.

It soon had the down-town streets as denuded of foliage as Broadway.

Then it started on the thoroughfares out into the outskirts. Soon it had made such a heavenly bower as Connecticut avenue into whitehot (in mid-summer) pathway as was Washington's shopping center, F street—previously denuded of leafage.

There was a campaign to deforest Sixteenth street (the Avenue of the Presidents). That DID start a "holler."

"Well," suggested the vandals, "suppose we cut the trees off only on the vehicular sides of the road, leaving the remaining branches to continue shading the sidewalks."

In other words, two rows of half-trees!

The vandals haven't succeeded in getting away with it yet, but they are still arguing.

* * *

AND A TUNNEL—!

Historic Dupont Circle is attacked, too.

The autoists haven't quite the nerve to ask to run their "cans" across it, but they do insist on a tunnel underneath.

Imagine Dupont Circle, undermined by a tunnel!

* * *

NOTHING SAFE

Vandalism is as remorseless in attacking historic buildings as in attacking anything else.

One might think that there would be inclination to preserve Commodore Decatur's old Washington home at Jackson and H streets. There is such an inclination, too, but vigorous fight is involved to do it.

Opposite the Capitol there was an old structure in which congress met after the burning of the original capitol by the British, during the 1812 invasion. Wouldn't one think that this should have been preserved as a national monument?

Not so. Congress unceremoniously had it yanked down a few years ago, to make room for the new supreme court building.

* * *

STOPPED BY A THREAT

The Women's National party had occupied it.

Their party had to move out, to make room for the supreme court.

The party moved around the corner to another historic shack. Shortly congress decided that it would like this new site for the benefit of the General Accounting office.

A Woman's National party committee called on the congressional committee to discuss the question. "You've moved us once," said the women. "Move us again and see what happens—at the polls, next time."

The Women's National party has not been evicted.

Advice to Governor Davey.

Editor News-Journal:

Public officials and state employes who wilfully waste or wrongfully divert even one cent of public funds from the purpose for which it is intended, thereby forfeit their right to all respect and confidence of the taxpayers of Ohio.

Four principles of service: Honesty, Efficiency, Economy and Courtesy, the public demands and has the right to expect from employes and officials, who feed at the taxpayers' trough.

During the Ohio senate graft investigation, I inquired of a retired business man for his opinion. He replied, "what I read may not be all true but where there is so much smoke there must be some fire."

The senate is the superior branch of the legislature. They thought it necessary to investigate the expenditure of the taxpayers' money. Their findings have been published and have brought astonishment to many friends of the executive head of the state administration.

The conclusion seems to be universal, that the proper course for Governor Davey, whose political appetite craves a third helping of public pie, would be to observe the rule for healthful eating, which is—to quit while he is still hungry.

Young America Asks—

"What Should America Do?"

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

IS AMERICA FACING BIG-TIME TROUBLE? AND SHOULD WE DO SOMETHING ABOUT IT, PRONTO?

Wendall Wright of San Bernardino, Cal., believes she is and we should. Here's Young America rallying cry which should bring every citizen to his feet, regardless of age.

Personally I'm not taking sides—but we want YOUR reaction, as fast as special delivery can bring it to us—

FOR WE'RE GOING TO PRINT AN UNFORGETTABLE MEMORIAL DAY COLUMN, AND WE'D LIKE TO HAVE YOUR OPINION IN A PLACE OF HONOR, PERHAPS AS A PRIZE WINNER. AGE LIMITS ARE OFF FOR THIS TIME! DAD AND MOM MAY COMPETE WITH JUNIOR OR SISTER.

So...grab your pen...give us your ideas on ANY CURRENT AMERICAN PATRIOTIC PROBLEM...and rush 'em to this writer at King Features Syndicate, 235 East 45th Street, New York City.

"Dear Miss Robinson—

"The United States is sitting on a bombshell! I refer to the vast, undeveloped resources of earth and man power or prejudice, which exists in our southern neighbors — Mexico, Central and South America. Unless properly headed and harnessed for the good of peace-loving, producing people, this situation will blow us all to hell in a hand bucket!

"What's the use of mincing words. Let's face facts.

"Already, a certain Oriental nation is busy obtaining a footing in the Southern American hemisphere — and do not think that this nation is not to be feared. Only those who have traveled in China, and seen her teeming millions, can realize what they will mean when adequate leadership is given them, AND IT IS SOON TO BE SUPPLIED! Japan intends to supply it.

"What should we do? What is our move in this time of international crisis? I have listed below the three things I believe should be done.

"1—Build a Navy second to none, also enlarge our Marine Corps and Army.

"2—Build the Nicaragua Canal. It will not only strengthen our national defense, and give the American merchant marine a chance to compete with foreign competition, BUT WILL SERVE TO BRING CENTRAL AMERICA INTO MORE CLOSE UNION WITH US.

"3—Take Mexico, Central and South America under our flag, and make them either territories or puppet republics of our nation. This is the method our enemies have adopted to gird their loins for coming combat; therefore, that we may not be caught unprepared, we must fight fire with fire. With control of our southern neighbors, and our very friendly relationship with Canada, we would have every type of climate and resource existing in the world at our disposal. We would be sufficient within ourselves, and the rest of the world could do naught but respect us.

"May the day dawn when the Stars and Stripes will float from the top of Alaska to the tip of Cape Horn, and the United States of the Americas will be the greatest nation economically, geographically and socially that God's sun ever shone on."

Wendall Wright—age 28

($10 prize winner)

Quite a program, Wendall! Haven't by any chance heard of Messrs. Alexander, Napoleon, Hitler, Mussolini and Capone, have you son? However, it's a grand chance for fighting talk—SO RUSH IN THOSE REPLIES. And, I repeat, remember this goes for Oldsters as well as Youngsters this time.

* * *

NEXT comes Marjorie Rose of San Antonio, Texas, whose sermon, though quite different, also carries plenty of punch.

"Dear Elsie—

"The greatest problem America faces today is not financial recession or political chaos, BUT A GENERAL COLLAPSE OF PERSONAL CONSCIENCE AND WILL POWER! We hear much talk of SOCIAL RESPONSIBILITY.....BUT SOCIAL CONSCIENCE IS MEANINGLESS WITHOUT PERSONAL INTEGRITY. As a nation we can rise no higher than our source—THE DECENCY AND DETERMINATION OF EACH INDIVIDUAL CITIZEN.

"What has happened to the solid, old, pioneering character of which Americans used to boast ...in those days when each man felt responsible to himself and his God? Today, we have become a nation of gullible listeners, doing, believing, buying and voting as some shrewd broadcaster politician or lecturer tells us to do. Even our sermons are "on the fence." We want speakers who will "interpret" our present life, but none who will interfere with our present practices, however doubtful they may be!

"The 'still, small voice,' which once led us has become entirely too small and still. WHAT WE NEED ARE GOOD OLD-FASHIONED BACKBONES INSTEAD OF STRINGS WHICH ANYONE MAY YANK!"

Marjorie Rose—age 23,

Straight shoting, girl — I wish I could mail that to every American!

AND last, but far from least, comes Bill Jacoby of Lorain, Ohio, exposing a much overworked racket.

"Dear Miss Robinson—

"Only a small percentage of American employes working for others are interested in their jobs or their own advancement. About 50 per cent are interested only in the wages they receive and the amount of work or responsibility they can avoid. When they ask for a raise, employes invariably base their requests upon a factor which has absolutely no connection with their job or boss. Usually they work the sentimentality racket.

"They say—'Now that I'm getting married, I think I should I should have a little more money,' or 'We've got a new baby at our house, so I thought perhaps I'd be entitled to a raise.'

"WHY SHOULD EMPLOYES BELIEVE THEY ARE ENTITLED TO A BONUS OR A REWARD JUST FOR GETTING MARRIED OR RAISING CHILDREN?"

The Dog Poisoner.

The person who poisons a dog or other domestic pet is about as low as humans go. It is not to be expected that everybody will like dogs. It is natural that there are persons to whom a dog is a nuisance. It further is true that often dog owners permit their animals to become annoyances and pests. But if ever there was a reasonable excuse for giving a dog ground glass or poison that excuse has not yet come to light.

If a dog is a nuisance, a pest or a menace in the neighborhood, and the ownership of the animal is known, the family should be notifed and then, if the situation is not corrected, civil authorities should be told. Dogs, licensed or not, are not permitted to run the streets, but if taken off their own premises are to be on leash. Any person has the right to report violations, but nobody has the right to take the law into his own hands.—Ohio State Journal.

Important Points In Home Construction

A house is as durable as its hidden details and if you are buying a house or building one, be sure to check the answers to these questions, suggested in the May issue of McCall's magazine:

"Foundations: Are walls of good construction, guaranteed not to leak or crack?

"Walls: Are brick walls properly constructed? A proper base provided for stucco?

"Window and door frames: Are they weather and water-tight? Weatherstripped?

"Roofs: Are they properly constructed, pitched and drained? Adequate flashing provided over all openings, at roof intersections and other places where leakage may occur?

"Floor beams: Are they adequate in size, with proper bearings on foundation walls, girders and headers? Proper cross-bracing been provided? Beams doubled around all floor openings?

"Framing: Have girders been leveled up with slate or brick and wood chips removed? Have all steel columns bearing plates at top and bottom? Is house sheathed and corner braced?

"Plaster: Is it of good quality and properly keyed to lath or plaster base?

"Insulation: Is it sufficient? Of first quality? Is it from a manufacturer who has a reputation to maintain?

"Plumbing: Are all difficult of access water pipes of brass or copper?"

WORDS OF THE WISE

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—It's like this: You are walking along the street and you meet people, and they tell you things.

That little man with the big eyes and the black hair bouncing out of the Cafe de la Paix is Eddie Cantor. He has come over to the St. Moritz for a conference with Eddie Davis, his script writer . . . Davis is one of the highest paid script writers in the business . . . Yet, there was a time when he wondered where the next quarter was coming from.

You learn this in this manner: Davis steps out of a cab at the hotel door and tosses the man a quarter tip . . . An attache at the hotel says: "It seems strange to see Eddie tossing quarters to people. It hasn't been so very long since Eddie was driving the cab and having the quarters tossed to him."

* * *

JOHN JACOB ASTOR 3rd is getting about . . . He seems moody and bored . . . I saw him at the circus, in a box, yawning while the aerialists were making me border on apoplexy . . . And then again at a night club, sitting with Merle Oberon, the actress, and Frank Shields, the tennis player, . . . Astor didn't seem to be having a very good time, although the others seemed to be enjoying themselves very much.

This man with the bushy eyebrows is a representative of the American Express company . . . "You wouldn't think there could be much humor among thieves," he says, "but listen to this . . ."

And he tells an astounding story . . . The other day a package was delivered to an executive of his company. It was a batch of travelers' checks which had been stolen with a lot of money and other loot.

* * *

BUT it is very unhealthy to try to cash stolen travelers checks . . . Those little serial numbers frequently lead to Alcatraz . . . So the thieves bundled the checks into a nice big roomy envelope and returned them. With this little note: 'Oops! So sorry!"

We got to talking about the men, some of them noted criminals, who are now behind bars because they were thoughtless enough to try to cash stolen travelers' checks.

"Here's a story," he said suddenly, "a little different from the others. The other day we received a letter from a man out west. To it was pinned a dollar bill. The letter went on to say that, 20 years previously, he had been an employe of the American Express company, and one day a package broke open and a baseball fell out. Somehow, he wanted that baseball, badly. So he stole it. He put it in his pocket and took it home.

'And then he left the company and went to work in another state. And as time went by it began to weigh on his conscience. He got, he said, 'religion.' And now he wants to atone for that misdeed of 20 years ago. So he sent in a dollar bill. And he hopes the company will forgive him."

CHAPTER XXVII

"Mass of stuff—mostly irrelevant, I should say. They haven't had time to go through it all yet, but from what Brook tells me there's not much doubt that Colesborough was a most complete wrong 'un — had been for years—brought up to it by his old ruffian of a father. It seems that the old man went off the deep end at being given a baronetage instead of the barony he had set his heart on. There's a packet of letters about it, all written to the son, saying he'd get his own back — score the government off — score the country off. The man must have been insane. Francis Colesborough too for that matter. That's proved by his keeping the letters. It's astonishing how people do keep things. Colesborough kept some pretty compromising stuff. Brook showed me a scheme of sabotage which would have paralyzed production in every factory in the country. It was headed 'To be applied in case of Emergency A.' Nice stuff to find in the safe of a man who held big government contracts! It seems to me that Mr. Zero deserves a public vote of thanks instead of the hanging he'll get when they catch him."

Mr. Brewster coughed. "Is there nothing in the safe that would give a clue as to his identity?"

"They haven't come across anything yet," said Montagu Lushington. He gave a heavy sigh. "It's a bad business I'm afraid they'll arrest Algy Somers."

Mr. Brewster made a shocked sound. "Oh, surely not, sir."

"If I felt sure of that, or of anything else in this case, I should sleep better tonight."

The Home Secretary was driving his own car. He looked straight ahead along a dark road and saw no end to it.

"Did they find that paper in the safe, sir?" said Mr. Brewster.

Montague Lushington came back from a long way off. He had been thinking that they would probably arrest Algy tonight, and if not tonight then certainly tomorrow, unless something turned up to incriminate someone else. And if Algy were arrested, he intended to place his own resignation in the hands of the Prime Minister.

He said, "What paper?" and Mr. Brewster explained.

"The one you missed at Wellings, sir. I thought it might have turned up. You said Lady Colesborough had confessed to taking it, and I thought—"

"You made a mistake then. I certainly did not tell you that Lady Colesborough had taken the paper."

"It must have been somebody else," said Mr. Brewster in a distressed voice, "but I really can't think who. Somers perhaps. Yes, now I come to think of it, I believe it was Somers."

Montagu Lushington laughed impatiently.

"It doesn't matter in the least, nor does the paper—now. What mattered was the list of suspected agents which was attached to the memorandum. Once Colesborough and his organization had seen the list and knew which of their men had come under suspicion, they could warn them, change them, substitute others. That was what mattered. Once Zero or Colesborough had seen the paper, the cat was out of the bag. They wouldn't keep the paper—they wouldn't want it."

"Dear me—I'd no idea," said Mr. Brewster.

"Nobody had," said Montagu Lushington drily. "The fewer people who knew the better. I was keeping the information under my hat until the raid was over."

"The raid?" Mr. Brewster spoke in a tone of surprise.

"Oh, it didn't come off. It wasn't worth while. The birds would have flown."

Mr. Brewster said, "Dear me!"

* * *

While the Home Secretary was driving towards Railing, Inspector Boyce was receiving a report from the smart young constable whom he had sent to make enquiries at the Hand and Flower.

"Sturrock was quite well known there, sir — regular customer — used to drop in in his off time and play a game of billiards. But he didn't play this afternoon. He didn't stay very long."

"What ddi he do?"

Collins loked chagrined.

"Well, I don't know that he did anything, sir."

"Did he use the telephone?"

"Well, sir, they don't know, and that's the truth of it. He might have done, but there's no one can say for sure. The telephone booth isn't in the hall any longer. They used to have it there, but they've moved it to a sort of recess outside the smoke-room. Mr Rudge, the proprietor, says he met Sturrock coming along the passage to the smoke-room. They had a bit of a chat—Mr. Rudge says about nothing in particular, but if the truth was known. I expect it was Sir Francis Colesborough's murder they were talking about, Mr. Rudge not being one to miss a chance like that, if you don't mind my saying so, nor I shouldn't be surprised if they'd stood there for the best part of half an hour. Mr. Rudge doesn't say that. All he says is they had a bit of a chat, and Sturrock went into the smoke-room to have a look at the papers. And that's all I got, sir."

"What about the exchange?"

"There were half a dozen calls put through from the hotel in the course of the afternoon. I spoke to the young lady on duty, and that's all she could tell me. She doesn't remember any of the numbers that were asked for — said she'd have a nervous breakdown if she was to start trying to remember all the calls she put through in a day. A bit off-hand, if you know what I mean." Collins frowned. Off-hand and worse, that's what she'd been. One of the kind that wants taking down a peg or two. He wouldn't mind having a shot at it himself — bluest eyes he'd ever seen.

"Well, that doesn't get us any farther," said Inspector Boyce.

The chief constable had departed. Mr. Brook had departed. The contents of the safe had been removed. Sturrock's body had been removed. Inspector Boyce had retired from the scene. To all outward appearance it might have been any Sunday evening at Cole Lester with the butler off duty and William taking his place.

"Actually," as Algy said to Gay —"actually, my dear, the eye of the police is very much upon us. There's a young-fellow-my-lad hanging round the place to see that I don't take the Bentley out and forget to bring it back, and there's a smart police pup in the lane with a motorcycle all ready to follow me if I do. And William is going around like a cat on hot bricks looking at me out of the tail of his eye I think he's thrilled at the idea of being at such close quarters with a murderer."

Gay stamped her foot and said "I wish you wouldn't! I can't think why we go on talking about it, and I can't think why we're in this horrible room! It simply reeks of policemen!"

* * *

Algy looked at her between half closed lids. The room, purged of the police force, was pleasant enough. The inspector had well and truly tended the fire. There was a pleasant light from a tall lamp behind the chair. It fell on Gay, on the bright color which anger had brought to her cheeks, on the shadows under her eyes He thought she had been crying. He thought that perhaps he would never see her again. And he had an overwhelming desire to bid this moment stay. He thought, "I love her," and thought how strange it was to feel this deep stab of triumph and pain. He thought, "She loves me too," and the triumph rushed up in him like a singing flame and consumed the pain. But he hadn't moved. The big chair held a lazy lounging young man looking with half closed eyes at an angry pretty girl.

The sight exasperated Gay, who was only too eager to be exasperated. If she could be really furious with Algy, everything wouldn't hurt so much. It was when she was sorry for him, when she wanted to put her arms 'round him and keep him safe, that the pain at her heart became almost unendurable. "Only you've got to endure it—you've got to—you've got to." And if they sent Algy to prison, she would have to bear it for years and years.

And then all at once such a little thing betrayed them both. Gay saw Algy looking at her. He didn't look lazy and more. His eyes were open and he was looking at her as if he loved her with all his heart, and as if he was saying good-bye—to love, to her, to everything It was only for a moment, but that moment broke her anger and her pride, and very nearly broke her heart She came over to the chair and went down on her knees by it, leaning to him across the arm, her hands holding it, her voice breaking on his name.

"Algy!"

It was no good. They had lost their balances and when you have lost your balance you catch at anything or anyone. These two caught at one another. held desperately together across the arm of the chair, kissed desperately as if there were no other time but this in which to kiss, to love, to cling together—a time quick with anguish, quick with joy.

* * *

It passed, but it left them in a new country. They drew back, still holding hands, looking at one another, and at this place to which they had come with stumbling half unwilling feet. Double pain for both, and a double load to carry, double foreboding, double fear, and a frowning barrier between them and the double joy which woud have made it all worth while.

Yet when Algy said, "I didn't mean to let you know," Gay knew just how unendurable that would have been.

She said so in a rush of words, "Horrible of you! I'd have died. I felt as if I was going to—when you said—they were going to arrest you"

"But, darling, you must have known that I did care."

"I didn't! How could I? You were being completely strong and silent. Oh, darling, wouldn't it be lovely if Sylvia had never been born, and if there weren't any police?"

Algy kissed her, and said he didn't follow.

"Dull! said Gay. "If Sylvia hadn't been born she wouldn't have married Francis Colesborough, and if she hadn't, I shouldn't have asked you to lend me your car, and we shouldn't have come hurtling down here in the middle of the night and be mixed up in Francis being murdered. There wouldn't have been any murder, and even if there had been, it wouldn't have mattered if there hadn't been any police."

After which lucid explanations she put her head down on his shoulder and found it comforting.

MANSFIELD WOMEN TO ATTEND CONFERENCE

Annual District Session of Home Missionary Societies of Methodist Churches Will Convene At Mt. Gilead Tuesday.

AMONG the women from Mansfield who will be in Mt. Gilead tomorrow to attend the annual Mansfield district northeastern Ohio conference of the Women's Home Missionary societies of the Methodist Episcopal churches are Mrs. C. G. Critchfield, Mrs. V. D. Coe, Mrs. R. W. James and Mrs. W. H. Valmore. Others planning to attend the district meeting are Mrs. E. G. Corwin and Mrs. A. E. Planck.

The session will start at 9:30 a. m. with Mrs. Fred C. Shipps, president, in charge. Mrs. Eugene Rush, Mt. Gilead, will give the greetings and the response will be offered by Mrs. H. Reed Walker, Shelby.

Following the opening services there will be views presented from representatives of the various counties. Mrs. Critchfield, county president, will speak for Richland county. Mrs. Coe, county treasurer, will give her annual report. Preceding the luncheon which will be served at noon at the church there will be departmental reports and the election of officers.

The afternoon session will include an address by Miss Grace Bate, Blodgett Community House, Hazelton, Pa. There will be a young people's banquet at 6.30 p. m. Mrs. Archie D. McNeal, Young People's secretary, is hostess.

There are 33 societies represented in the district and approximately 150 delegates are expected to attend the conference.

Irene Holcombe, George Park Wed Saturday at 4:30

At 4:30 p. m. Saturday in the quaint setting of the Bay Village Presbyterian church Miss Irene Holcombe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Merton Holcombe, 12 Heineman boulevard, and George Park, son of Mr. and Mrs. James N. Park, Cleveland, were united in marriage. Dr. Franklin Reinhold, pastor of the church, read the simple ceremony.

Miss Holcombe wore a navy and white suit and a corsage of orchids. Attending the bridal couple was Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Biddle.

Mr. Park is an alumnus of Ohio State university where he was a member of Alpha Phi Omega social fraternity. Mrs. Park was a graduate of Mansfield high school and president of Rho chapter of Chi Sigma sorority. Both Mr. and Mrs Park have been employed at the Westinghouse Electric Manufacturing company. Following a wedding trip to Chicago, Mr. and Mrs. Park will be at home at 373 Park avenue west.

DOROTHY FULDHEIM TO SPEAK THURSDAY

Temple Emmanuel Sisterhood Will Present Noted Lecturer On European Situation At High School Auditorium.

DOROTHY FULDHEIM, noted lecturer on European situations, will be presented Thursday evening in the high school auditorium by the Temple Emmanuel Sisterhood of Mansfield. Mrs. Fuldheim, who has appeared here on several occasions previously, has just returned from a European trip where she has gathered material for her lecture, "European Merry-Go-Round."

This was her 12th European tour and in wide travels she has visited all of the European countries and is in a position to give first-hand impressions of the countries and some of the leaders.

Mrs. Fuldheim's background includes teaching, the stage, and platform lecturer. She has appeared throughout the United States before women's clubs, private and charitable organizations. After spending the past 10 years lecturing and also serving as a correspondent, Mrs. Fuldheim is felt to be one of the most able lecturers on the world situation, presenting as she does up-to-the-minute impressions.

Mrs. Norman Kann is general chairman in charge of arrangements for the lecture which the Sisterhood is sponsoring. Tickets are available now at the Bookshop and at Goldsmith's or at the door Thursday evening.

Give Miscellaneous Shower For Couple

Mr. and Mrs. Alvie B. Robinson were honored Saturday night at a miscellaneous shower party given at the home of Miss Opal Robinson, 74 Buckingham street. Eighteen guests were present for the social evening. Mrs. Robinson was the former Miss Zettie Tooker.

Prizes were won by Opal Heimberger, Clyde Swank, Ray Piefer and Mr. Robinson. The guests of honor were presented with a number of gifts.

* * *

Mrs. W. H. Eberhardt and daughters, Mary and Dalee and son, Donald, Miss Mary Long, and Fred Hastings, Medina, were the Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Merill Kline, 290 East Fourth street.

Greenwich

JOIN IN CELEBRATION

Greenwich was well represented at the Northwest Territory celebration in Norwalk, Friday.

Our schools were dismissed at noon so that the pupils could see the parade at 2 o'clock, which proved to be interesting, especially to the younger generation who had never witnessed any thing of the kind before. The many county high school bands enlivened the entertainment.

The caravan was greeted by an immense crowd with many persons dressed in costumes of long ago.

60 AT BANQUET

About 60 attended the high school dramatic club banquet held in the high school auditorium Saturday evening, April 23.

The dinner was served by the home economic girls after which a short program of readings was given by Miss Carole Couch of Heidleberg college, and trombone solos by Vaughn Miller. Later, cards and dancing were enjoyed.

Give Supper For Miss Kaufman, Ivan C. Bettiker

Honoring Miss Mary Lou Kaufman and Ivan C. Bettiker, who will be married next Saturday, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Massenburg and Mr. and Mrs. K. L. Woodman entertained with a buffet supper at the Woodman home, 55 Euclid avenue, Saturday evening. The table was decorated with a centerpiece of yellow roses and painted daisies flanked by yellow candles in three-branch candelabra.

The honored guests were presented with balloons which disclosed the hiding place of miscellaneous gifts. The hosts and hostesses presented Miss Kaufman and Mr. Bettiker with an electric mixer.

After the supper bridge was played at three tables. Prizes were won by Mrs. G. L. Bierly and Walter Jordan. Miss Kaufman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Kaufman, 66 Herman avenue, and Mr. Bettiker, Cleveland, will be married at Leroy May 7.

* * *

STUDENT RECITAL

Vocal students of Mrs. Edith Fletcher Jameson, will appear in recital tomorrow evening at 8:30 o'clock at the teacher's home, 41 Blymyer avenue. The concert will be open to friends and parents of the students. Seat reservations can be made by phoning Mrs. Jameson, the instructor announced.

* * *

INVITED TO DINNER.

Members of the Mansfield Business and Professional Women's club have been invited to attend a 6:30 p. m. dinner meeting of the Dover and New Philadelphia clubs Thursday, May 12 at the St. John's Evangelical church at Dover. Mary Vashti Jones, state legislative chairman, will be the speaker for the affair.

BRIEFS

Miss Clara Donaldson, Mrs. C. B. Saunders and daughter Gladys, and Mrs. Donald Amsden returned Tuesday evening from the D. A. R. convention at Washington.

* * *

Mrs. Fern Crum and Mrs. Ray Willett were joint hostesses to the Thursday bridge club this week. Three tables were in play and score prizes were awarded Mrs. Gladys Templer and Mrs. Elizabeth Ringle who will be the hostesses for the next party in two weeks. Refreshments were served.

* * *

Mr. and Mrs Glen Cowden returned from Birmingham, Ala., the first of this week where they were called because of the serious illness of Mr. Cowden's mother, Mrs. Belle Cowden, who died last Friday.

Wife Claims To Love Him, Won't Show It

By VIRGINIA LEE

What is love? asks a man who also suggests that I use that for his signature. This man has been married 23 years and is in his forties. He and his wife have five children.

About eight months after their marriage, he says, he and his wife had a "little trouble," and it has steadily been getting worse year after year.

His wife says she loves him, but shows him no affection whatever, pays no attention when he is ill.

He is at home almost every night, he writes, doesn't drink or smoke cigarets, and only a cigar once in awhile. "I get up in the morning and get breakfast, wash out my shirt and overalls every Saturday, often help to mop the floor, wash dishes, always sew my own buttons on and use the sewing machine to sew my overalls and all my sewing."

He has tried to coax her to change her ways, but she will not. If they go to spend the evening with friends, she will not speak to him all evening; when they recently went on a 150-mile trip with his nephew, this wife never once spoke to her husband.

I wish I could look into your wife's heart and find out why she acts as she does. There are people, I am sorry to say, who never forgive a hurt. It may be your wife is this type. You offended her early in your married life and she has never forgotten or forgiven. That is only a guess of course. She may have a thousand things against you. Such people are sure they are justified in their attitude.

You say you have coaxed and pleaded with your wife to be more affectionate and appreciative, and she refuses to change. Then I would stop if I were you. You certainly do more than your share of the work, if besides supporting five children and the wife you do your own sewing and help with the housework. I can't see that it is fair that you should do so much, but that, of course, is your affair.

The only thing I can tell you is to make up your mind that demonstrative love is not for you. Your wife may love you in her way, as she says, but maybe it isn't natural for her to show it. Possibly she cannot show it. Some can't. Then take it for granted and stop feeling sorry for yourself. Maybe your children, your daughters especially, will help make up the lack of affection in your life. And it is just possible that if you no longer coax your wife to love you she will fear she is losing your love and make more of an effort to please you.

In starting a new lawn, attention must be given to subsurface drainage, grading and leveling the soil, kind of soil, preparation and fertilization of the seed bed, and the use of suitable seed. If any of these features is neglected, the results are almost sure to be unsatisfactory.

Favored Fashions

Shirtwaist Style Heads List of Fashionable Favorites.

By MARIAN MARTIN

If you want a dress that's on the go from dawn 'til dark, then this shirtwaister is the answer. Its lines are classic in their simplicity and so smart this Summer that you'll look well-dressed wherever you go. Pattern 9722 features coat lines which are charmingly flattering to every type of figure. The buttons also give you an opportunity for unusual color combinations. The curved yoke, in one with the front bodice panels, is not only easy to cut and stitch, but makes the dress set well at the shoulders. Make up several versions of this practical style. A Complete Marian Martin Diagrammed Sew Chart is included.

Pattern 9722 may be ordered only in misses' and women's sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44. Size 16 requires 3⅝ yards 39 inch fabric.

BE SURE TO STATE SIZE

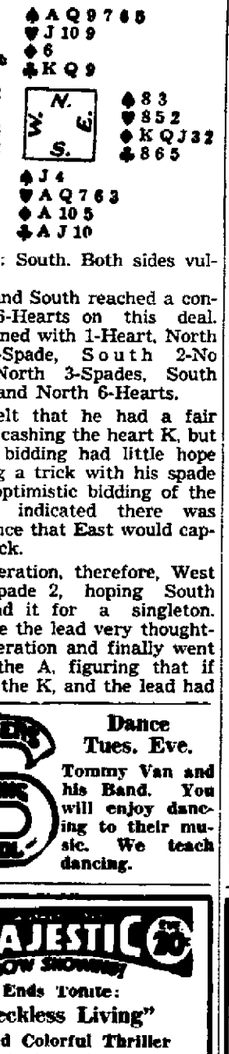
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

BLIND MAN'S BUFF

IF YOU think the declarer has you beaten by straightforward bridge, try to inveigle him into the old-fashioned game of blind man's buff. Make him grope around in the dark imagining the situation is entirely different from what it really is. By befuddling him, you may cause him to bump his head against a door while trying to protect himself from an imaginary obstruction which doesn't exist.



(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

North and South reached a contract of 6-Hearts on this deal. South opened with 1-Heart, North called 1-Spade, South 2-No Trumps, North 3-Spades, South 4-Hearts and North 6-Hearts.

West felt that he had a fair chance of cashing the heart K, but from the bidding had little hope of winning a trick with his spade K. The optimistic bidding of the opponents indicated there was small chance that East would capture a trick.

In desperation, therefore, West led the spade 2, hoping South would read it for a singleton. South gave the lead very thoughtful consideration and finally went up with the A, figuring that if East held the K, and the lead had been a singleton, the play might cost him an extra trick.

West was highly elated when he saw the A played, for he then knew the contract was set.

* * *

Tomorrow's Problem.

(Dealer. North. Neither side vulnerable.)

Against bidding of 1-Spade by East, 2-Hearts by West, 3-Spades by East, 4-Clubs by West and 4-Spades by East, what should South lead?

Leftover fish can be added to salad dressing. When mixed with pickle relish, it makes a good filling for "stuffed eggs." Meat can be used the same way.

HOROSCOPE

For Tuesday, May 3.

A very productive and promising day is presaged from the predominant planetary configurations. Excellent opportunities for promotion, honors, favors and fulfilled ambitions are shown. There may be surprising angles in the affairs, probably instigating swift moves or change of plans. Finance, trade, writings and publicity should flourish.

If This Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves in a year of expanding and productive opportunities for stabilizing the fortunes and increasing the possessions. Honors, favors, promotion and happiness are probable, with ambitions well on the road to fulfilment. A sudden change may be necessary, or a decisive reorganization of the life and its plans, in which romance and adventure may have part. Business, finance, writings and publicity should thrive.

A child born on this day may be efficient, versatile, depenable and ambitious. It may have much originality, with predispositions toward the unusual, revolutionary and romantic which may result in rather fluctuating fortunes but much adventure.

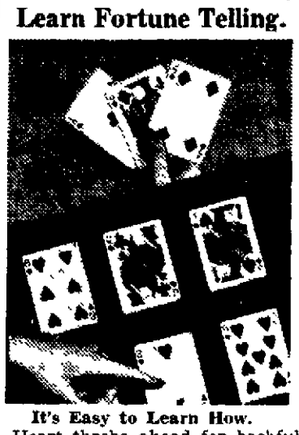
Make Hit With Friends, Learn Fortune Telling.



It's Easy to Learn How.

Heart throbs ahead for bashful Sue. Success for hard-working Jim.

"How do you know?" the crowd demands. Fun to keep them guessing—but it's really simple to read cards.

Sue's name card is the Queen of Clubs, since she's a brown-haired girl. Six of Hearts announces a party where she'll surely meet the dark man represented by the Jack of Spades.

Added excitement — Two of Hearts promises a proposal. And, luck piled on luck, Nine of Hearts says, "Her wish comes true."

Blond Jim's the Jack of Diamonds. Here's a boy who'll climb fast. "New job right away," predicts the Ace of Clubs. "And at better pay," the Four of Diamonds smiles.

No need to rely on a glittering line of chatter for popularity when fortune-telling's your hobby. Our 32-page booklet gives meaning of every card in the deck. Also 73 tea-leaf symbols. Horoscopes Fortunes-in-campfires.

Send 10c for your copy of "Fun With Fortune-Telling" to The Mansfield News-Journal Home Service, 635 Sixth Ave., New York, N. Y. Be sure to write plainly your Name, Address, and the Name of booklet.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

I smiled at Mary as she made her plea that I go on telling her of my plan to foil Philip Veritzen's dastardly scheme to discredit her as an actress, and promised that she would not interrupt me again. It is impossible to resist her when she is in a coaxing mood, and I found my annoyance at her reference to Philip Veritzen's former infatuation for me melting away faster than ever did snow before spring sunshine.

"When I think that Mr. Veritzen is about to spring his great coup and read you out of the cast because there is no life in your role," I said measuredly, "then we will spring a little surprise on him. You will give an entirely different rendition of your role than the one he has taught you, and I am confident that it will be so good he will have to keep you in the role."

Mary shook her head despondently.

Mary Skeptical.

"It's a marvelous scheme," she said, "and with anybody else than my father-in-law I should be dancing with joy. But can you imagine Philip Veritzen ever 'having' to do anything?"

"You have a short memory, Child," I told her indulgently. "I know of two or three occasions when Mr. Veritzen, powerful in his own world of the theater as he is, was compelled to do something he distinctly did not wish to do."

She knocked the side of her head energetically.

"Pound my wooden head!" she adjured me. "What a mess of sauerkraut I am! Of course I remember how you put over Noel's getting his mother's money for himself, and how you engineered our marriage."

I could remember other instances of conflict with the great producer when I had come off victor, but I wished no further reminiscenses, and struck in again hastily.

"We won't dwell on it," I said. "I only wanted to let you see things were not hopeless, as you feared."

"I can see very clearly they are not hopeless as far as you are concerned, you darling," she said, smiling at me affectionately. "But—have you considered how I'm saturated with those directions of my beloved papa-in-law? I'm afraid I never can put over my own idea of the role in the short time we have. I'd always be imbuing it with his interpretation."

Agrees With Mary.

"I agree with that premise, Mary. It is too short a time. You would not be able to put over your own interpretation."

She stared at me blankly.

"I'm afraid I don't see—" she began, and I interrupted her summarily.

"Are you forgetting that I wrote this play?" I asked, smiling.

Her face was suddenly illumined, and she clapped her hands as might a suddenly joyous child.

"Oh!" she exclaimed. "You mean that you will drill me in your idea of the role. That will just be too marvelous! I remember Father Veritzen saying once that you had the capability for great acting if you had only adopted that career."

Has Two Assets.

"He was too extravagant," I said shortly. "And if all I had was capability, even that with which he credits me, I should not be able to do much for you. But I happen to possess two assets whch I am ready to lay at your feet."

"I know one of 'em, right off the reel," Mary said. "You had years of experience in teaching before you met Uncle Dicky, and I'm here to declare that you're a born one. The dumbest person in the world, and with all due modesty I admit that I am far from that, couldn't help but learn his lesson if you taught it to him."

I threw up my hand in mock salute.

"To quote your uncle, 'Gramercy for the beet greens'," I told her. "But, as it happens, I have another asset upon which I am counting most to make this attempt a success."

THEATER

SCREEN SHOTS — Paramount will revive "A Farewell to Arms" in June . . . Gary Cooper and Helen Hayes co-starred in this picture which was made in 1932 . . . Frances Gifford is taking flying lessons from Husband James Dunn, which will make her one of the few feminine pilots among Hollywood stars . . . The only other well-known one is Ruth Chatterton . . . William Wellman, the director, is scouring the country for a Ryan cabin monoplane like Lindbergh flew to Paris . . . It will be used in "Men With Wings" . . . Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers will play the leads in "Carefree" . . . Wayne Morris will play the lead in "Valley of the Giants" . . . Dorothy Lamour and George Raft are to be co-starred in "Spawn of the North."

* * *

Most Romantic Adventure.

The screen, which lately has focused a majority of its bigger productions on biographical productions, has seen many portraits of characters taken from the past. Few of them enjoyed a life more significant and romantic than the Marco Polo "The Adventure of Marco Polo," with Gary Cooper in the title role, is the current attraction at the Ohio Polo's journey to the 13th century court of the great Khan in Kambalu, Peiping, had as its object the extension of private commerce and the development of new trade opportunities for the Polo brothers, Marco's father and uncle. The film traces the adventures of Marco from Venice to Asia, and his 17-year stay in his efforts to open trade routes. To add to his plight he falls in love with the Khan's daughter, played by Sigrid Gurie. Others in the cast are Basil Rathbone, Ernest Truex, Alan Hale, George Barbier and Binnie Barnes.

* * *

Jungle Drama at Madison.

Reunited in the same type of film that vaulted them to screen fame, Dorothy Lamour and Ray Milland are seen togther again in the technicolor production, "Her Jungle Love," playing through Wednesday at the Madison. Milland plays a young Indo-Malayan transport pilot forced down on a jungle isle uninhabited except for Miss Lamour, a white "goddess" in the eyes of the surrounding superstitious natives. The picture traces the activities of the native ruler who attempts to dispose of the pilot and his partner, Lynn Overman. Supporting the three are J. Carrol Naish, Dorothy Howe and Jonathan Hale.

* * *

"The Good Earth."

The dramatic story of China's teeming millions, their struggles, their hardships, and the heartbeat of the great and little known nation, is transcribed to the screen of the Majestic theater Tuesday. The film, adapted from the novel by the same name by Pearl S. Buck, co-stars Paul Muni and Luise Rainer. "Extortion," with Scott Colton, Mary Russell and Thurston Hall completes the double feature bill. The mystery is concerned with the unravelling of the strange murder of the proctor of a small college, who has made a host of enemies with his misdeeds. Finally a young editor takes a hand in solving the crime.

* * *

"Radio City Revels."

Bob Burns, Jack Oakie, Kenny Baker and Ann Miller head the cast of "Radio City Revels," opening at the Ritz theater Tuesday. The theme of the film is based on what psychologists call "automatic writing," the peculiar faculty some few persons possess of being able to write in their sleep or in a subconscious state. Burns is an Arkansan hill billy who yearns to become a song-composer, although his efforts while awake are hopelessly amateurish. When he is asleep, however, he can—and does—write sparkling songs, and on this odd phenomenon hinges the whole plot of the story. Carole Lombard and Fred MacMurray in "True Confessions," and Jane Withers in "45 Fathers," are the current features.

My Neighbor Says:

To remove perspiration marks from white silk, mix some bicarbonate of soda to a stiff paste with cold water. Spread thickly on the parts and leave for an hour or so before washing. This will also remove scorch marks if they are not very bad.

Never leave egg whites after they have been beaten stiff. If allowed to stand they will flatten and will not beat up again.

Economy Notes For Spring Serving

By PAULINE SCHOFIELD
Home Service Department of the Ohio Fuel Gas Company.

We are up on our toes with the advent of spring. New fashions, new tastes and color herald its arrival.

Even the most enthusiastic homemaker tires occasionally of the continous round of meal preparation. There are meals to be prepared in seemingly endless parade—breakfast, luncheon, dinner—in order that the family may be fed the nourishing food so necessary for its physical well-being.

Nothing could be more appropriate for a spring meal than this new main dish. These dishes are economical, offering as they do, splendid opportunities for use of left-over vegetables, fruits, and other delicious tid-bits.

Menu.
Hollandaise Carrots
Ham Roll-ups
Bread and Butter Pickles
Tutti-Fruitti Salad
Fruit Juice Mayonnaise
Cinnamon Crackers Coffee

Ham Roll-ups.
(Sweet Potatoes and Pineapple Stuffing).

2 Medium sweet potatoes
3 tablespoons melted butter
½ cup crushed pineapple
¼ cup chopped pecans
½ cup cracker crumbs
3 tablespoons brown sugar
2 slices smoked or boiled ham, ¼ inch thick
¾ cup pineapple juice

Cook sweet potatoes in boiling salted water until tender. Drain and mash. (Left-over mashed sweet potatoes may be used). Add melted butter, pineapple, nut meats, cracker crumbs, brown sugar; and mix well together. Spread thick layer of filling on each slice; roll as for jelly roll; and fasten with tooth picks or tie in shape. Place in baking dish; pour over pineapple juice and bake in moderate oven (350° F), one and one-half hours for smoked ham or 40 minutes for boiled ham. Baste frequently with liquid in pan. Cut each role in thirds. Serves six.

Hollandaise Carrots.
6 medium sized carrots.
*Mock Hollandaise

Wash, scrape and cut carrots in rounds. Cook in boiling, salted water for 20 minutes or until tender. Drain and cover with *Mock Hollandaise. Serves siz.

Mock Hollandaise.
2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons flour
1 cup milk
½ teaspoon salt
Dash of white pepper
½ cup mayonnaise

Melt butter in double boiler and blend in the flour. Then add milk gradually, stirring constantly. Cook until entirely smooth. Add salt and pepper. Remove from fire and slowly add real mayonnaise. Continue stirring. Makes about 1 cup of sauce. Serves six.

Tutti-Fruitti Salad.
1 package lemon gelatin
2 cups hot water
¼ cup quartered strawberries
¼ cup diced apples
¼ cup diced avacado

Dissolve lemon gelatin in hot water. Pour a thin layer of cooled gelatin in bottom of 8x4x2 inch mold and allow to set. Then arrange desired pattern with slices of avacado and strawberries. Cover with gelatin and allow to set. When remaining gelatin begins to thicken, set bowl in ice water and beat with a rotary egg-beater until very light and fluffy. Fold in fruit and pour into mold. When firm, unmold on chicory and garnish with whole strawberries. Serve with *fruit juice mayonnaise. Serves six.

Fruit Juice Mayonnaise.
⅓ cup mayonnaise
⅓ cup cream, whipped
1 tablespoon fruit juice
2½ tablespoons confectioners' sugar

Fold real mayonnaise into whipped cream. Add sugar and fruit juice. Makes one cup mayonnaise.

Cinnamon Crackers.
1 dozen cream crackers
2 tablespoons butter, creamed
1 tablespoon sugar
¼ teaspoon cinnamon

Spread crackers with butter and sprinkle with a mixture of cinnamon and sugar. Place under broiler and toast until golden brown. Serves six.

Clean Brass

A well-polished piece of furniture looks shabby if its brass trimmings are not cleaned. Use a good grade of brass polish and clean each piece thoroughly.

Topsy-Turvy Cake for Dessert

A splash of whipped cream tops this portion of cherry tip-top. The dessert may be made of canned or fresh sour cherries.

Variety of Fruits Suitable For Up-Side-Down Confection

By MRS. ALEXANDER GEORGE
(AP Feature Service Writer)

Upside-down desserts live a topsy-turvy existence.

In the baking pan they're right side up. The fruit—or sweet mixture— is placed in the bottom of the pan and the dough is poured over it.

When they're ready to be served, however, these desserts are completely turned over—leaving the fruit or sweet on top.

There are numerous upside-down desserts to prepare at this time of the year.

Rhubarb Delight.

Rhubarb Delight for instance, is a tart, juicy dish to match against appetites sharpened by spring zephyrs.

To make it:

Cherry Tip-Top Dessert
Topping
2 cups pitted sour red cherries or one number two can
⅔ cup sugar
2 tablespoons butter
Cake Mixture
2 eggs, well beaten
1 cup pastry flour
½ teaspoon baking soda
1 teaspoon cream of tartar
1 cup granulated sugar
½ teaspoon of salt
½ cup hot milk
½ teaspoon lemon extract

Drain the juice from the cherries. Combine the two-thirds of a cup of sugar with the cherries. Place in a buttered baking dish and dot with the two tablespoons of butter broken into small pieces.

Prepare the cake mixture by beating the eggs until they are light yellow and creamy. Add the sugar and continue beating. Sift the flour, soda, cream of tartar and salt together and add to the egg mixture. Mix well and then add the hot milk and lemon extract. Pour over the cherries in the baking dish and bake until cake is light to the touch and well browned. (Bake at 350°.)

Tip the dessert bottom side up when removing it from the baking dish. Serve either hot or cold with cream, whipped cream or a cherry sauce made by sweetening and thickening the cherry juice.

Mix three cups of sliced, peeled rhubarb, three tablespoons of flour, one cup of granulated sugar, half a cup of orange juice, a fourth of a cup of lemon juice, a tablespoon of mixed, grated orange and lemon rind and three tablespoons of butter. Place in a shallow pan. Then cut two-inch circles of rich biscuit dough rolled half-an-inch thick. Arrange the circles on top of the rhubarb mixture. Bake the combination 30 minutes in a moderate oven. Turn out—rhubarb side up. (Note: Top the dessert with one teaspoon of cinnamon and a third of a cup of candied orange peel, nuts, raisins or cocoanut—just before you put it in the oven.)

Apricot and Pineapple.

Apricot-Pineapple Upside-Down Cake is made in a frying pan.

Mix—in the frying pan—half a cup of butter and two cups of granulated sugar. Cook slowly until both are melted. Then add half a cup of pineapple juice and two tablespoons of lemon juice. Cook two more minutes and cover with sliced pineapple and halves of apricots. Add a coating of your favorite sponge, gold, one-egg or yellow cake batter. Then bake the combination, in the frying pan, for thirty minutes in a moderately slow oven.

Suggestion number three is Apple-Cheese Topsy-Turvy, which tastes something like an apple pie and cheese combination.

Melt a third of a cup of butter in a frying pan. Add two cups of dark brown sugar. Cook until the two are melted and mixed. Then add two cups of sliced apples, one teaspoon of cinnamon, a third of a cup of nuts, two tablespoons of flour and half a cup of water. Cover with a biscuit dough to which half a cup of grated cheese has been added. Bake for thirty minutes in a moderate oven.

What goes best with upside-down desserts?

Whipped cream, hard sauce, fruit sauces, ice cream or sherbert.

CHAIR 'MARCH' 24 HOURS AWAY FOR MRS. HAHN

Blond Poisoner Clings to Hope Davey Will Save Her in 11th Hour Move.

LAWYER GOES TO COURT

Attorney to Seek Authority for Appeal to U. S. Supreme Court, Execution Stay.

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
(INS Staff Correspondent)

COLUMBUS—Death in the electric chair seemed only a little more than 24 hours away today for blond Anna Marie Hahn, Cincinnati poison slayer, but she clung desperately to the flickering candle of hope.

While her counsel, Joseph Hoodin, was planning to go into court this afternoon in a move to block the execution, the "blond iceberg" was pinning her hopes on an eleventh-hour intervention by Governor Martin L. Davey.

Remains Calm.

Mrs. Hahn, doomed to be the first woman to pay the supreme penalty in Ohio's "chair," calmly awaited her fate in her cell in the state prison. Tomorrow evening she is scheduled to walk "the last mile." But if she has to die, she says, she will meet the ordeal without flinching.

Her lawyer, Hoodin, prepared to go before Chief Justice Carl V. Weygandt of the supreme court at 1 o'clock this afternoon with a petition asking that the case be appealed to the supreme court of the United States.

No action is expected on Governor Davey's part until after the state supreme court has acted on this petition. The governor has given no intimation of what he would do.

The plight of the 31-year-old Mrs. Hahn is attracting considerable interest. She was convicted in Cincinnati last November of the murder by poison of Jacob Wagner, 78, a gardener, by a jury of 11 women and one man. The state contended she was guilty of other poisonings.

No Sympathy Drive.

Although a woman, there has been no sympathetic movement to prevent the execution, Mrs. Margaret Allman, director of welfare, the first woman cabinet member in Ohio, who is in charge of penal institutions, told International News Service that this is an "astonishing angle" of the case.

"No women's group has interceded in Mrs. Hahn's behalf," said Mrs. Allman. "Nobody has been to see us asking clemency for her.

SPEED CLEAN-UP

City Workers Run Ahead of Schedule, Plan Revised.

As Mansfield's spring clean-up campaign went into its second day, Service-Safety Director Tracy C. Styert announced a change of schedule that will send the city clean-up crew into the Fourth and Fifth wards one day earlier than had been planned.

Styert explained that city workmen were expected to finish the First and Sixth wards today and tomorrow will move into the Fourth and Fifth wards which they hope to be able to complete by Friday. Under the revised schedule, the crew will cover the Second and Third wards the last two days of the week.

Styert urged all residents to have their rubbish in containers at the curb the night before the designated clean-up day as the city crew gets started at 6 a. m.

Pioneer Parade Makes History as City's Largest Crowd Turns Out for Observance

Attendance Set at More Than 50,000; Procession Takes Hour To Pass; 9 Bands Add Color To Event.

STREETS, WALKS JAMMED

They were taking down the bunting and the decorations today, and the day that brought the largest crowd in the city's history to downtown Mansfield was on its way into history.

If you were in the huge throng that saw the Northwest territory parade, or at the Fairground last night for the pageant, your guess is as good as anyone's as to exactly how many people were in Mansfield yesterday.

Estimates ran from 10,000 to 100,000. Somewhere between was the truth.

E. J. Mildren, secretary director of the Northwest Territory commission of Ohio said: "It was the largest crowd that's greeted us since we were in Marietta." That included Youngstown, Steubenville and a score of other towns.

Steubenville turned out 50,000 strong. Mansfield, he insisted, turned out better than that.

Former Gov. George White, who was here for the celebration, supported Mildren's belief.

"The only other reception to compare with this since we left Marietta was at Steubenville, and I think this one surpasses the Steubenville observance," he said. Both Mildren and White spoke in Central park yesterday afternoon after the parade disbanded.

It was an almost unanimous opinion in the city that the parade, which included more than 100 floats, marching units, wagons, automobiles and trucks, was the largest ever seen in Mansfield.

It required an hour for the parade to pass as the colorful line stretched in from Park avenue west to Central park, around the park, then over North Main, West Fourth and North Mulberry streets back to Park avenue again.

Line of March Crowded.

Thousands jammed streets and sidewalks along the entire line of march. Windows in virtually every downtown building were filled with spectators and dozens of persons climbed to the tops of buildings to

START NEW QUIZ OF 'DAVEY FUND'

Hamilton Grand Jury Probes Liquor Department; Duffy Certain of Violations.

(By International News Service)

COLUMBUS — Grand jury investigation of the reported shakedown for state civil service employes for contributions to Governor Davey's campaign fund spread to another front today as the Hamilton county regular grand jury began a probe of violations among liquor department employes in Cincinnati.

At the same time, Charles Sawyer, Democratic candidate for governor, declared he would go on the air Friday night over a statewide radio hookup to flay these reported practices.

"In fairness to the people of Ohio," Sawyer said, "I should like to have it plainly known how I feel about the five per cent assessment now being collected from state employes for primary campaign purposes."

Of his intended radio address, the Cincinnati business man said "I will deal in no uncertain terms with this strong arm method of raising campaign funds which cannot fail to demoralize public service in Ohio."

Meanwhile, Attorney General Herbert S. Duffy planned to recall Ruth Carter, secretary to Dan T. Moore, securities division chief, for additional testimony. She testified for more than 30 minutes yesterday afternoon before the special grand jury recessed for the day.

Duffy said he would ask Common Pleas Judge Dana F. Reynolds to excuse G. E. Martin, a

THREE VICTIMS OF PICKPOCKETS

Northwest Territory Parade Spectators Lose $64 In Cash.

As an aftermath to the Northwest Territory celebration three persons victimized by pickpockets today counted their losses totaling $64.

M. S. Moser, of Shiloh, and Thomas B. Miller, Willard, told police yesterday that they lost their purses while attending the ceremonies at Central park. Moser said his purse contained $40, while Miller reported a loss of $20. W. E. Smith, of Plymouth, reported to police that his pocketbook containing $4 was taken while he watched the parade at North Walnut street and Park avenue.

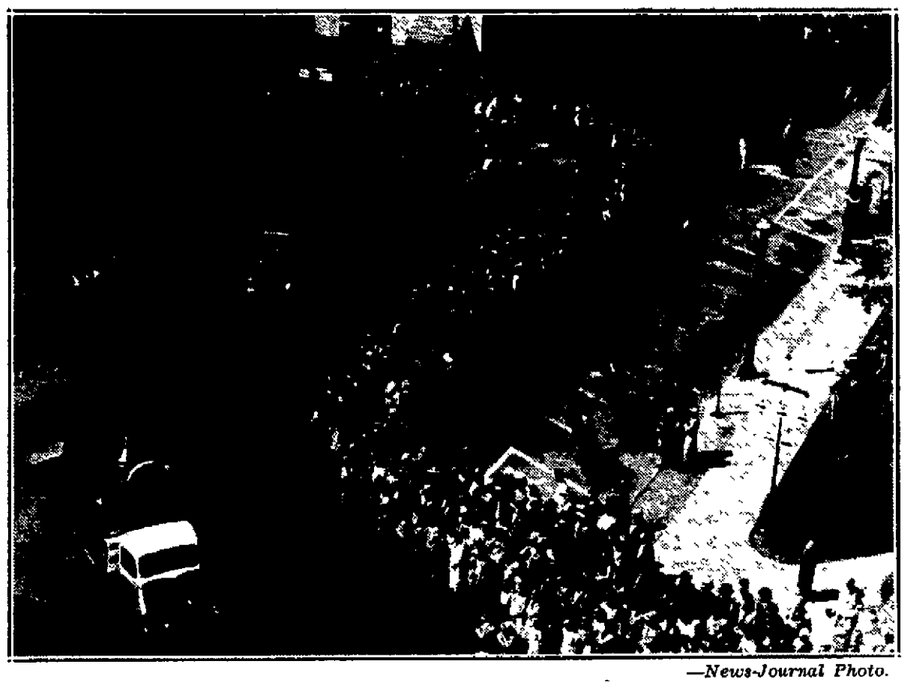
Record Crowd Sees Floats In Northwest Parade



—News-Journal Photo.

Two of the floats in yesterday's giant parade marking the Northwest Territory anniversary celebration, start around Central park in the above picture, while part of the huge throng, estimated at 50,000, watched. The parade came down Park avenue west from Bowman, around Central park, over Main street to West Fourth, out Fourth to Bowman, thence to Park avenue and back to the park, where brief speaking exercises were held.

Contrasts Stand Out As Pioneers Retrace Steps

Life 150 Years Ago and Today Emphasized In City's Longest and Most Colorful Parade In Years.

EDITOR'S NOTE—Helen Allyn of the Cleveland Press staff is spending a week on The News-Journal, while Jane Williams of The News-Journal takes her place on the Press.

By HELEN ALLYN

No one who saw yesterday's parade ever again will ask, "What's the idea of the covered wagon on this year's license plates?"

All that is left today of the pioneers' second trek through Mansfield, is that small black picture on the plates—and a memory of a parade that brought the old and new together in one of the longest and most colorful processions Mansfield has seen for many years.

Everywhere one looked yesterday, he was struck with the contrasts between life in Ohio 150 years ago and in our own streamlined age today.

Modern 'Pioneers.'

Even the pioneers took on a modern air as they swung down the avenue, nonchalantly puffing at English briar pipes, their buckskin coats flapping with a definite college-bred swing.

Every float that looked like 1788 had a brand new counterpart for contrast . . . The old horse-drawn ambulance and hearse drove by . . . and right behind it was a 1938 model, long, sleek and fast.

Women on the sidelines tipped their new straw hats at a becoming angle, powdered their noses and straightened their lipstick and watched the floats roll by with sunbonneted ladies as decorations.

"Hoopskirts may have been all right in those ages," one modern housewife remarked, "but I'd like to see anyone getting into a bus

JACKIE SCORES

Coogan Victor in Two Court Actions Over Riches.

LOS ANGELES— (AP) —Jackie Coogan glowed today with the elation of his first sweeping victory in a legal fight with his mother and stepfather for "The Kid's" onetime film fortune.

Saying that "I do not think a child is bound to give his services to his parents," Superior Judge Emmet H. Wilson overruled two demurrers to Coogan's $4,000,000 accounting suit and rejected several defense motions.

He denied a petition by attorneys for Mr. and Mrs. Arthur L. Bernstein to dismiss the receivership of Coogan-Bernstein properties, varyingly estimated to be worth $250,000 or $500,000.

OCEAN CHOPPY

Storm Keeps President From Angling for Big Ones.

CHARLESTON, S. C. — (AP) — President Roosevelt waited for clear weather today before resuming his vacation voyage to the Virgin Islands after an overnight anchorage inside Samana bay near the eastern end of Santo Domingo.

A threatening storm sent the cruiser Philadelphia with the president and his party aboard into the shelter of the Dominican bay early last night. A choppy sea during the day broke the chief executives good weather luck and prevented fishing.

"The president spent a quiet day dividing his time between his quarters and the forecastle deck," said last night's radio message to the navy yard here.

HITLER'S TRAIN ROARS TO ROME

Speeds to Duce's $20,000,000 Welcome and Six-Day Visit With Dictator.

BULLETIN

BOLOGNA, Italy — (U.P.) — Fuehrer Adolf Hitler's special train arrived here today and the chancellor was given an enthusiastic ovation by a crowd of 50,000.

(By United Press)

ROME—Fuehrer Adolf Hitler's special train, guarded at every yard, raced down through northern Italy today toward Rome and a Roman triumph.

A holiday had been declared throughout Italy as part of Premier Benito Mussolini's $20,000,000 welcome to his guest and fellow partner in the "Rome-Berlin axis" of diplomatic co-operation, here for a six-day state visit.

Hitler's special train, followed by a second train bearing lesser members of his large entourage, crossed the Brenner Pass, the historic gateway through the Alps between Italy and what is now part of Germany, early today on its way to Bolzano, Verona, Bologna, Florence, Arezzo, Chiusi and Rome, where it was due at 8:20 p. m. (3:20 p. m. EDT.

The weather was splendid, and crowds gathered early here along the four-mile route from the new Ostia station where Hitler arrives, to the old Quirinal palace where he will be the guest of King Victor Emmanuel.

Sally To Lecture At Harvard

BALTIMORE —(INS)— Sally Rand, who stepped from a night club floor to the legitimate stage, on Thursday will step just as blithely from the stage to lecture platform — at Harvard!

From a couple of feather fans to the hallowed ivy of Cambridge is quite a jump but Miss Rand will complete the hop when she boards a plane to speak to Harvard's class of 1941 on the subject, "How To Be Intelligent Even Though Educated."

Miss Rand's secretary said definitely for Miss Rand that she would fulfill the engagement.

LEGISLATURE TO TACKLE RELIEF PUZZLE MAY 16

New 'Stop-Gap' Measure Seen as Davey Sets Date for Special Session.

(By Associated Press)

COLUMBUS—Ohio's legislature will come back May 16 to wrestle with its third so-called relief crisis.

Gov. Martin L. Davey in a speech broadcast last night called a special session for that date to consider legislation intended to relieve financially-distressed cities.

The problem will be in no way unique to Ohio's assembly members. They took office on Jan. 1, 1937, and at the end of that month found relief funds exhausted. So they passed stop-gap measures.

These lasted until April 15, when the entire state relief setup collapsed and its administrative organization disbanded. Nothing was done to alter the situation.

Last November the legislature returned upon Gov. Davey's call, a principal reason for which was relief legislation. The solons wound up the session in the late hours of Feb. 28, this year, after approving at the last minute measures that provided $12,000,000 for relief and placed administration in the hands of local governments.

'Stop-Gap' Program.

Now they are coming back to debate laws designed to supply poor aid funds for the remainder of the year. By Governor Davey's own recent admission, the program-to-be likely will be of a stop-gap nature. He told officials of Ohio cities two weeks ago that the pressing need was to care for indigents this year.

"We will take care of 1939 when it comes," he declared.

The governor did not outline what relief program he would recommend, but this he did say:

"I doubt very much whether a majority of either house would vote for new state taxes. . . . We will do the best we can against adverse sentiment."

ENDORSE 'ERNIE'

Dem Leaders Back Kallmerten for State Committee.

E. B. Kallmerten, Richland county Democratic executive committee chairman, today had been endorsed for the 17th district state central committee post after party leaders in the district agreed that it is Richland county's turn to elect a committeeman.

Endorsement of Kallmerten was made at a meeting of district central and executive committees at Mt Vernon.

The district committee post has been held for the last two terms by M. R. Hayes of Delaware county, who, it was understood, will not be a candidate for re-election. Richland county has not had a Democratic state committeeman for 12 years. Committee terms are for two years.

Party leaders also endorsed Mrs. Freer Bittinger of Ashland for re-election to the women's state central committee.

LOSING MONEY HERE NOW, SAYS UTILITY HEAD

Tharp Reveals Company Stand After Mead Turns Down Committee's Proposal.

SILENT ON FIGURES

Council Group Confers for Two Hours, Fails to Reach Contract Agreement.

BULLETIN

Chairman Russell D. Porch, of council's utilities committee, expressed surprise this afternoon at the vigorous stand taken by E. M. Tharp, Ohio Fuel Gas company general manager, for higher gas rates in Mansfield than those now in effect. He indicated the committee would oppose any attempt to increase rates.

The Ohio Fuel Gas company is going to seek a rate increase in Mansfield—and is emphatic about it.

That was revealed today by E. M. Tharp, general manager of the company, after council's utilities committee met for two hours last night with William C. Mead, Mansfield division manager, and wound up with Mead rejecting the committee's proposal, which would reduce the present rates, and offering a counter-proposal, higher than the present figures.

Mead could not be reached to reveal the figures contained in the gas company's proposal, and Tharp, reached by The News-Journal at Toledo, said he would prefer not to give them out himself, but would rather have them come from Mead.

Leaves No Doubt.

Tharp left no doubt as to what stand the gas company would take in the question of a new rate contract. The present contract expires May 15.

"Certainly we will have to have an increase in rates," Tharp said. "The settlement made in Mansfield in 1935 was made on an extreme compromise basis, and has been an out-of-pocket loss to the company since."

Tharp said the present rate was the lowest obtained in the state at the time it was accepted, and said that Mead had been given several proposals — all of which amounted to the same average cost—to submit to the council committee.

Tharp had no comment on the utilities committee's proposal.

Silent on Counter-Offer.

Russell D. Porch, chairman of the committee, said today that the company had proposed a rate contract which would increase the cost of gas to Mansfield consumers but said he was not authorized to reveal the figures.

"We met last night, but we were unable to agree on either rates or length of contract. We have not decided on our future course of action. That's all I am authorized to say," Porch said today.

Filmland Wonders Who Got Simone's Gold House Keys

HOLLYWOOD—(U.P.)—The identity of the holder of two golden keys to Simone Simon's house door set the screen colony to guessing today.

The French motion picture star stirred interest in the question by her conversation with reporters as she left the courtroom yesterday after an appearance at the theft and forgery hearing of her former secretary, Sandra Martin.

"'Wouldn't you like to know?" she answered a question. "Well, you never will."

She tripped out of court and her former secretary went back to jail.

Miss Simon sent two solid gold keys to a friend as a Christmas present, she admitted. Questioning in court did not reveal the identity of the friend. Whoever he or she was, the friend also received a dressing gown worth $180, slippers, and a gold watch shaped like a golf ball.

DOOMED TO DIE

Gang Aid of "Pretty Boy" Floyd Loses Supreme Court Appeal.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. — (U.P.) —Adam Richetti, one time friend and companion of Charles (Pretty Boy) Floyd, must die in Missouri's lethal gas chamber for his part in the Kansas City union station massacre of June 17, 1933, division two of the state supreme court ruled today.

Thirty Years a Telephone Man, Retires to 'Rest'

When A. R. Murphy, 77, closes his desk tonight at the Mansfield Telephone company, he will look forward to a "little loafing."

After 30 years with that company and some 25 additional years working at other jobs, Mr. Murphy believes he is entitled to a rest, he said today.

He has a brand new traveling bag, the farewell gift of the people with whom he has worked for three decades, but he hasn't yet determined how far or where he will take it. For the present, he says, he will be content to putter around his flower garden in his back yard at 40 Arthur avenue.

Although Mr. Murphy retires tonight, his name will not be forgotten at the local telephone company. A grandson, Jack Murphy, 24, of Canton, started in at the office yesterday to learn the telephone business and carry on in his grandfather's path.

The elder Mr. Murphy is proud that during the past 30 years he has been with the telephone company, service has been shut down only twice. Once was during the flood of 1913 when power was off for a day because the boiler room was flooded. The only other time was when the Armistice was declared, Nov. 11, 1918, and the employes left at 8:30 a. m. to celebrate until 5:30 p. m.

For the past 15 years, Mr. Murphy has been commercial superintendent of the company. In the early 1900's, he was a member of the city police department two years under Mayor Pat Henry and in 1903 he was elected service director for a two-year term.

"I've seen a great change in telephones and the service in the course of my service," Mr. Murphy said today. "We've had four different kinds of phones—the ring up, the wall phone with operator, the upright desk phone and now the cradle kind."

When he first went with the company the mechanical operation was far different, too. From the manual system where the operator used the old jack and plug system to get a number, he has seen the evolution to the present automanual type, where the operator sits comfortably in a chair, instead of on a high stool, and through touching keys, gets the number much in the manner of running an adding machine.

Mr. Murphy is a true Mansfielder, born and raised on a farm just a mile and a half from downtown. He has one son, Earl C. Murphy of Canton and a daughter, Mrs. Andrew Worth of Cleveland.

Economy Notes For Spring Serving

By PAULINE SCHOFIELD
Home Service Department of the Ohio Fuel Gas Company.

We are up on our toes with the advent of spring. New fashions, new tastes and color herald its arrival.

Even the most enthusiastic homemaker tires occasionally of the continous round of meal preparation. There are meals to be prepared in seemingly endless parade—breakfast, luncheon, dinner—in order that the family may be fed the nourishing food so necessary for its physical well-being.

Nothing could be more appropriate for a spring meal than this new main dish. These dishes are economical, offering as they do, splendid opportunities for use of left-over vegetables, fruits, and other delicious tid-bits.

Menu.
Hollandaise Carrots
Ham Roll-ups
Bread and Butter Pickles
Tutti-Fruitti Salad
Fruit Juice Mayonnaise
Cinnamon Crackers Coffee

Ham Roll-ups.
(Sweet Potatoes and Pineapple Stuffing).

- 2 Medium sweet potatoes
- 3 tablespoons melted butter
- ½ cup crushed pineapple
- ¼ cup chopped pecans
- ½ cup cracker crumbs
- 3 tablespoons brown sugar
- 2 slices smoked or boiled ham, ¼ inch thick
- ¾ cup pineapple juice

Cook sweet potatoes in boiling salted water until tender. Drain and mash. (Left-over mashed sweet potatoes may be used). Add melted butter, pineapple, nut meats, cracker crumbs, brown sugar; and mix well together. Spread thick layer of filling on each slice; roll as for jelly roll; and fasten with tooth picks or tie in shape. Place in baking dish; pour over pineapple juice and bake in moderate oven (350° F), one and one-half hours for smoked ham or 40 minutes for boiled ham. Baste frequently with liquid in pan. Cut each role in thirds. Serves six.

Hollandaise Carrots.

- 6 medium sized carrots.
- *Mock Hollandaise

Wash, scrape and cut carrots in rounds. Cook in boiling, salted water for 20 minutes or until tender. Drain and cover with *Mock Hollandaise. Serves siz.

Mock Hollandaise.

- 2 tablespoons butter
- 2 tablespoons flour
- 1 cup milk
- ½ teaspoon salt
- Dash of white pepper
- ½ cup mayonnaise

Melt butter in double boiler and blend in the flour. Then add milk gradually, stirring constantly. Cook until entirely smooth. Add salt and pepper. Remove from fire and slowly add real mayonnaise. Continue stirring. Makes about 1 cup of sauce. Serves six.

Tutti-Fruitti Salad.

- 1 package lemon gelatin
- 2 cups hot water
- ¼ cup quartered strawberries
- ¼ cup diced apples
- ¼ cup diced avacado

Dissolve lemon gelatin in hot water. Pour a thin layer of cooled gelatin in bottom of 8x4x2 inch mold and allow to set. Then arrange desired pattern with slices of avacado and strawberries. Cover with gelatin and allow to set. When remaining gelatin begins to thicken, set bowl in ice water and beat with a rotary egg-beater until very light and fluffy. Fold in fruit and pour into mold. When firm, unmold on chicory and garnish with whole strawberries. Serve with *fruit juice mayonnaise. Serves six.

Fruit Juice Mayonnaise.

- ⅓ cup mayonnaise
- ⅓ cup cream, whipped
- 1 tablespoon fruit juice
- 2½ tablespoons confectioners' sugar

Fold real mayonnaise into whipped cream. Add sugar and fruit juice. Makes one cup mayonnaise.

Cinnamon Crackers.

- 1 dozen cream crackers
- 2 tablespoons butter, creamed
- 1 tablespoon sugar
- ¼ teaspoon cinnamon

Spread crackers with butter and sprinkle with a mixture of cinnamon and sugar. Place under broiler and toast until golden brown. Serves six.

Topsy-Turvy Cake for Dessert

A splash of whipped cream tops this portion of cherry tip-top. The dessert may be made of canned or fresh sour cherries.

Variety of Fruits Suitable For Up-Side-Down Confection

By MRS. ALEXANDER GEORGE
(AP Feature Service Writer)

Upside-down desserts live a topsy-turvy existence.

In the baking pan they're right side up. The fruit—or sweet mixture— is placed in the bottom of the pan and the dough is poured over it.

When they're ready to be served, however, these desserts are completely turned over — leaving the fruit or sweet on top.

There are numerous upside-down desserts to prepare at this time of the year.

Rhubarb Delight.

Rhubarb Delight for instance, is a tart, juicy dish to match against appetites sharpened by spring zephyrs.

To make it:

Cherry Tip-Top Dessert
Topping

- 2 cups pitted sour red cherries or one number two can
- ⅔ cup sugar
- 2 tablespoons butter

Cake Mixture

- 2 eggs, well beaten
- 1 cup pastry flour
- ½ teaspoon baking soda
- 1 teaspoon cream of tartar
- 1 cup granulated sugar
- ½ teaspoon of salt
- ½ cup hot milk
- ½ teaspoon lemon extract

Drain the juice from the cherries. Combine the two-thirds of a cup of sugar with the cherries. Place in a buttered baking dish and dot with the two tablespoons of butter broken into small pieces.

Prepare the cake mixture by beating the eggs until they are light yellow and creamy. Add the sugar and continue beating. Sift the flour, soda, cream of tartar and salt together and add to the egg mixture. Mix well and then add the hot milk and lemon extract. Pour over the cherries in the baking dish and bake until cake is light to the touch and well browned. (Bake at 350°.)

Tip the dessert bottom side up when removing it from the baking dish. Serve either hot or cold with cream, whipped cream or a cherry sauce made by sweetening and thickening the cherry juice.

Mix three cups of sliced, peeled rhubarb, three tablespoons of flour, one cup of granulated sugar, half a cup of orange juice, a fourth of a cup of lemon juice, a tablespoon of mixed, grated orange and lemon rind and three tablespoons of butter. Place in a shallow pan. Then cut two-inch circles of rich biscuit dough rolled half-an-inch thick. Arrange the circles on top of the rhubarb mixture. Bake the combination 30 minutes in a moderate oven. Turn out—rhubarb side up. (Note: Top the dessert with one teaspoon of cinnamon and a third of a cup of candied orange peel, nuts, raisins or cocoanut—just before you put it in the oven.)

Apricot and Pineapple.

Apricot-Pineapple Upside-Down Cake is made in a frying pan.

Mix—in the frying pan—half a cup of butter and two cups of granulated sugar. Cook slowly until both are melted. Then add half a cup of pineapple juice and two tablespoons of lemon juice. Cook two more minutes and cover with sliced pineapple and halves of apricots. Add a coating of your favorite sponge, gold, one-egg or yellow cake batter. Then bake the combination, in the frying pan, for thirty minutes in a moderately slow oven.

Suggestion number three is Apple-Cheese Topsy-Turvy, which tastes something like an apple pie and cheese combination.

Melt a third of a cup of butter in a frying pan. Add two cups of dark brown sugar. Cook until the two are melted and mixed. Then add two cups of sliced apples, one teaspoon of cinnamon, a third of a cup of nuts, two tablespoons of flour and half a cup of water. Cover with a biscuit dough to which half a cup of grated cheese has been added. Bake for thirty minutes in a moderate oven.

What goes best with upside-down desserts?

Whipped cream, hard sauce, fruit sauces, ice cream or sherbert.

'NOT AFRAID TO DIE,' MRS. HAHN TELLS NEWSMEN

'Still Feel I May Have a Chance,' Doomed Prisoner Says in Interview.

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
(By INS Staff Correspondent)

COLUMBUS—"If I have to go—I'll die as courageously as possible. I'm not afraid to die."

Blond Anna Marie Hahn, scheduled to die in the electric chair Wednesday evening, made this assertion in an interview in her cell today. She will be the first woman executed in Ohio's electric chair.

"I still feel that maybe I have a chance," she declared.

Mrs. Hahn, 31, convicted last November in Cincinnati, for the poison murder of aged Jacob Wagner, a gardener, sat calmly in her cell, rocking back and forth in a chair as she talked freely to 30 newspaper men and women.

Pins Hopes on Davey.

She said she based her hope on possible escape from the electric chair on Governor Martin L. Davey. Asked regarding her chances, she replied:

"I still believe they wouldn't want to take my life. After I'm gone they can't hurt me. But Oscar..."

She ddin't finish the sentence.

Oscar is her 12-year-old son, who last saw his mother at Easter time when he spent two days with her.

The condemned woman seemed not the least bit excited. She rocked in her chair, looking as contented as a housewife sitting on her own front porch and discussing the weather.

Mrs. Hahn was neatly attired in a white silk blouse and a dark blue skirt. Her light brown hair was carefully waved, with curls falling over her neck. From her throat was suspended a silver crucifix. She was seated in a rocker, one of four chairs in a commodious cell in "murderer's row." The cell contained a bed, three other chairs, a bathtub, a table containing flowers, two photographs of her son, and a bible. The walls of the cell contained a dozen pictures, most cut from magazines.

She pulled her rocker close to the cell door. The newspaper men and women crowded up against the screen mesh of the cell. She shook hands with several she had met during her trial.

One of the first questions asked her was:

"Are you innocent?"

"I am," she replied. Her blue eyes stared directly at her interrogator.

"Did you have a fair trial?" was another question.

"No," she declared, sharply. "It was unfair in every respect. The prosecution tried to blacken my whole character. The prosecution said I wasn't any good. We all do things in life we shouldn't do. None of us are perfect."

Race Interest Gone.

The tension was broken somewhat when a reporter asked the condemned woman did she know the Kentucky Derby was to be run on Saturday. Mrs. Hahn was an avid race track fan and used to "play the horses."

She smiled wanly. No, she couldn't pick the winner. She didn't even know what horses were running. "I'm not interested now," she said.

Regarding her son's future, she said she didn't want Oscar to be sent to her native land of Germany.

"Because of Hitler?" she was asked.

She merely smiled.

"You are not a Nazi, then?"

"No."

She has received about 500 letters, some of whom have buoyed her hopes. One woman wrote, she smilingly related, asking her to will her her fur coat.

"I'm not going to do it," she said.

Asked if she had made a will, she replied: "That's all taken care of."

CROWD CITY TO GREET PIONEERS

Thousands Line Streets for Parade Climaxing City's Territory Celebration.

courthouse were to be closed during the afternoon as well as all schools in the city and county. Everywhere attention was turned to recognition of the early pioneers who founded Richland county and Mansfield.

The oxen and covered wagon in the federal caravan "crossed up" the Mansfield reception committee before noon today, arriving from Milan about 10:30 a. m. Members of the caravan, clad in the dress of frontiersmen, took their oxen to Central park where a large crowd of spectators gathered immediately.

Another section of the federal company, however, followed the scheduled route through Shelby and was escorted into Mansfield about 12:30 p. m.

The county-wide celebration will have a dramatic conclusion at 8 p. m. today with a pageant "Freedom on the March," presented by a company of 38 federal players at the Richland county fairgrounds.

Included in eight episodes, each representing a chapter in the early history of the Northwest Territory, the pageant will recall the struggles that accompanied the founding of the middle west at the close of the Revolutionary war period.

The drama will open with the Albany convention, the first pre-Revolutionary effort at colonial unity, and the final episode will depict the establishment of the first American civil government west of the 13 original colonies.

Preceding the program at the fairgrounds, the visiting federal players, who will arrive this afternoon with the cart caravan, will be feted at a dinner at the First Methodist church.

Warns of Pickpockets Following Caravan

Persons attending the Northwest Territory celebration today were warned by Police Chief Meade K. Bates to lock their homes during their absence and not to carry large amounts of money with them to the ceremonies. He said that he had received reports from other cities where the celebrations have been held that numerous persons have been victimized by a gang of pickpockets which has been following the caravan.

Who's Youngest Grandmother? Big Day Awaits Her

STRONG GUARD THROWN ABOUT 3 DICTATORS

Hitler's Visit With Duce Calls for Precautions; Stalin Hears Threats.

(By United Press)

LONDON—The secret police of three great totalitarian nations of Europe took extraordinary precautions today to guard against any attempt to assassinate three rulers.

German and Italian authorities joined in efforts to avoid or to frustrate any attempt to kill Fuehrer Adolf Hitler or Premier Benito Mussolini during the visit to Rome on which Hitler starts tonight.

The guard upon Josef Stalin, of Russia, already the closest guarded man in the world, had been increased, it was understood, as the result of reports that a threat had been made by radio—a new technique in the history of terrorism—to kill him.

Makes Death Threat.

It has been reported persistently for several days that a secret short wave radio station, purporting to be in Russia but possibly operated from an airplane, had broadcast:

"Stalin has been sentenced to death and the Liberators' league will carry out the execution."

Information was that Stalin's guards had been unusually vigilant because of frequent broadcasts by the mysterious "Liberators' league." Despite attempts by the big Moscow stations to jam the broadcasts, it was said, the secret station was heard to announce that the league would make its existence felt soon.

Besides the threat to kill Stalin, the mysterious station was said to have praised Marshall Mikhail Tuckhachevsky, Nikolai Burkharin, Alexei Aykov and other military and civilian leaders executed in the merciless purge as "enemies of the state."

For months past, high operatives of the German gestapo have been in Rome, preparing for the visit on which Hitler leaves tonight. Arturo Bocchini, head of the Italian secret police, and Heinrich Himmler, chief of the dreaded German gestapo, have co-operated. Himmler will be in Hitler's personal entourage when he leaves tonight, along with the devoted Sepp Dietrich, chief of Hitler's personal bodyguard staff, and a corp of Nazi giants pledged to die if Hitler does.

10,000 on Job.

A United Press canvass of sources on the continent revealed that 10,000 operatives of Mussolini's ovra have been on special duty in Rome, Florence and Naples, which Hitler and Mussolini are to visit this week. They included several hundred women who lounge in bars, on trains, in the streets, with eyes and ears open for suspicious characters. A number of these women will be invited to all functions at which the dictators appear.

During Hitler's visit no private individual will be permitted to receive a boarder or lodger without notifying the police.

Fascist officials have stoutly denied the recently published reports that "thousands" of persons have been detained for safe keeping in anticipation of the Hitler visit. But they admit that for two weeks they have been rounding up numerous intellectuals, Italians, German and Austrian Jews and others, and that non-Fascists will be closely watched.

HOLC Holding Judgment on Property, High Bidder.

Sold at sheriff's sale Saturday at the courthouse, a property at 19 Spring street was bid in by the Home Owners Loan corporation for $2,380, or $72 more than the judgment held by the bidder against Mrs. Anna Monastere.

The property was appraised at $1 800 and was sold on a $2,308 judgment obtained by the H. O. L. C.

A second lot, located on Lily street, and offered on a $412 judgment by the Mechanics Building and Loan company, failed to sell and will be re-advertised. The property is owned by Harry F. Bell and others.

YOUTH FOUND UNCONSCIOUS

Victim Overcome by Gas Fumes From Motor, Police Say.

A 22-year-old youth who early yesterday was found in his garage overcome with carbon monoxide gas, today was reported recovering in the General hospital.

Police who were called to 319 Linden road at 12:30 a. m. yesterday said they found Wilbur R. Cleckner, of 25 Elmwood drive, slumped unconscious over the steering wheel of his car. They said the garage doors were closed and that the motor was running. The officers took Cleckner to the hospital where he was placed in an oxygen tent.

Police said they were called when John Massa, of 319 Linden road, who rents his garage to Cleckner, reported that a car was in the garage and that the lights were burning.

DELAYS RURAL SCHOOL PLANS

County Board Votes to Revamp Consolidation Program for Townships.

Butler township had won its battle to keep its schools for at least another year, after the Richland county board of education decided to delay and revise its rural school consolidation plan in Butler, Bloominggrove, Franklin and Weller townships.

A petition, drawn up by the Butler township board and asking that the Adario schools be retained for an indefinite period, was presented to the county board at a hearing Saturday afternoon at the courthouse.

While the board granted the Butler request under a temporary plan only, a revised re-districting program will not be drawn up until next week, Boyd Robinson, county superintendent, said today.

The county board's original plan would have consolidated the Adario high school with the Union school in Weller township and closed five one-room schools in Bloominggrove and Butler townships.

About 70 residents of the districts affected by the re-districting program attended Saturday's hearing at the courthouse. Most of the protest was against the closing of the Adario high school and the building of a proposed $200,000 high school to house high school pupils from an area including Butler, Bloominggrove, Weller and Franklin.

CUNNINGHAM, Kans.—(U.P.)—A mother and two of her children were killed and 13 other persons were injured last night when a tornado ripped through this farming community.

The dead were Mrs. John Miller and her sons, George and Virgil.

The storm also struck at Coldwater and reports said several persons were injured.

DEATH HELD SUICIDE

ZANESVILLE — (INS) — Coroner Ray McDaniels today issued a verdict of suicide after the finding of the body of Arthur R. Bryan, 35, who had been missing for a week. Bryan's body was found in the Muskingum river.

A Farmer's Diary

—By CALVIN A. BYERS—

May 1.

TODAY I walked with my wife into the woods, where, when I was a youth, I spent many precious springtime hours . . . laid down upon the tender silky grass and always found it made a lovely, fragrant bed.

The bluebell, windflower, trillium and sweet william nodded in the sweet May wind. The new-born leaves of beech still held their long brown bracks; the heavy, pungent hickory bursted its terminal bud and stood a plume of leaves and stems. Some maples, with their leaves half grown, already made a moist cool shade.

To the south, in a grassy field, we saw a tern start from its resting place, fly fifty feet or more, then with long graceful wings raised high, make its familiar scream as it reached the ground and disappeared into the grass. This is the only one I saw this spring.

We walked into the hollow of this grove, green with the growth of all the woodland plants. Our ankles felt their cool and tender touch. The last year's leaves were almost all concealed. The sun shone through the greener tops of larger trees and flecked the little landscape all about with bright, moving spots of light and shade.

We walked on, until we reached the farthest corner, where many years ago I always found the rarest flowers of the entire woods — hepatica, wild ginger, anise, bloodroot and yellow violet. They still grew here but are not so numerous—the grass has smothered some.

Memories of my youth came back to me. I stood here, all alone in the presence of all that had been here. I loved here once. Today I came back, found the open door, and lived here once again, unmindful of the intervening years. My companion understood. She said, "How can anything so beautiful be so near to heart break?"

"Nature never forsakes the heart that loves her."

FIRST DELIVERY

Postoffice Starts Woodland Mail Service Today.

Residents of the Woodland district today received their first mail carrier service as mail deliveries were started in that section of the city for the first time.

According to Postmaster Herman E. Homberger the carrier made his first trip in Woodland this morning, and was to make his second trip this afternoon. Under the new service, two deliveries will be made each day, and residents also will receive parcel post and special delivery service.

Addition of Woodland to the city carrier service will add 249 homes to the present system, will increase the number of routes to 30, and will add at least 16 miles to the system. The new service will be made on 14 streets.

The route will be handled by substitute carriers at present but will mean the addition of new men to the system in the near future, Homberger said.

DIES IN BLAZE

NEW YORK—(INS)—Postmaster General James A. Farley reported today after a 4,000 mile trip that business conditions in the country are on the mend. "We seem emerging from the recession," he said.

WIFE KILLER HANGS HIMSELF

Jobless Mechanic Awaiting Trial Found Dead In Cell.

AKRON—(U.P.)—Frank Sowards, 41, a jobless mechanic who murderd his school-teacher wife March 27, hanged himself in his county jail cell here today.

Deputy Sheriff Roy Jeffers found Sowards hanging from a bar in the jail hospital cell. A brown necktie was looped around his throat.

Held by a rubber band to Soward's limp wrist was a grime-smeared, half-legible note, apparently written several days ago. The note blamed the trusty who had furnished Sowards with the tie for the act.

COUNTY COUNCIL ELECTS AT 78TH ANNUAL MEETING

One Change of Executive Personnel Made; Coffey Talks, Young People Give Play.

The Richland County Council of Religious Education re-elected all of its officers but one at closing sessions of the 78th annual convention of the organization held Sunday afternoon and evening at St. Matthew's Lutheran church.

Miss Ruth Swaidner, Mansfield, was elected secretary to succeed Miss Virginia Fenner of Mansfield. Officers re-elected are R. G. Bush, Mansfield, president, Chester Monn, Shelby, vice president, and M. S. Casto, Mansfield, treasurer.

Departmental superintendents re-elected are C. E. Copeland, Mansfield, administration; L. J. Cashell, Mansfield, leadership training; Arthur Boyce, Shelby, young people; Mary Gramly, Mansfield, assistant; Mrs. J. F. Kramer, Mansfield, temperance, and Miss Hazel Manner, Mansfield, primary department.

Hear Talk By Coffey.

The convention was addressed by LeRoy E. Coffey, police chief of Shelby and Rev. J. C. Campbell, pastor of the Methodist church at Plymouth. The convention was brought to a close in the evening with a play, "What Shall It Profit?" by the young people's group of the Richland Church of the Brethren.

Three Mansfield churches were awarded prizes for having the largest delegations at the convention. Prize winners are Richland Church of the Brethren, first; Oakland Lutheran church, second, and the Free Methodist church, third.

Between 200 and 300 young people from Sunday schools in Richland county attended both the afternoon and evening sessions. Music was presented by the Mansfield Junior Civic chorus, and the Sunday school orchestra of St. Matthew's Lutheran church. R. G. Bush, president, presided at the afternoon session, and Arthur Boyce, Shelby, president of the young people's section, presided in the evening.

WATER BONDS UP IN COUNCIL AGAIN TUESDAY

Ordinance to Provide $64,000 for Improvements to Get Second Reading.

With only few minor changes and approved by the Cleveland bond counsel, the $64,000 bond ordinance, designed to finance the proposed $75,000 Woodland water project, will go before city council for its second reading tomorrow night.

The ordinance was sent to Squire, Sanders and Dempsey, bond attorneys, for approval two weeks ago after council had voted 5 to 3 against passing the measure as an emergency. This action followed a debate on a franchise clause incorporated in the ordinance that gives the bondholders the right to operate the utility in case of default by the city. Several councilmen had contended that the clause was not necessary in order to make the bonds saleable.

The ordinance calls for the issuance of $64,000 in waterworks mortgage revenue bonds to be retired over an eight-year period.

City Solicitor Marion D. Ward said the only changes suggested by the bond attorneys were a few additions to the franchise clause that would tend to make the bonds more saleable at a lower rate of interest. The major one was the suggestion that the clause specify a 10 per cent increase in present water rates in case the city should default on payments.

Other Bonds on Docket.

Council also will be asked to approve the issuance of $30,000 in general bonds within the 10-mill limitation that would provide funds for developing the city's park system, storm sewer extensions, and three separate improvements in the fire department, one of them being the purchase of one new piece of apparatus.

Half of the total amount of the bond issue is for the fire department, $8,500 being earmarked for the purchase of a new pumper.

Another $1,500 would be used to purchase approximately 20 new fire hydrants and another $5,000 would go for improving the fire and police signal system to carry on the extensive underground program started last year.

The $6,000 for park improvements would be the city's share of a proposed WPA project to rehabilitate the city parks.

The part program, which has been approved by district WPA offices, is awaiting an appropriation from council before going to Washington for final approval. It calls for the expenditure of $25,000.
